Family Farm Marketing Program Takes Root

DAVE LEFEVER

WASHINGTON, D.C. — How do you satisfy people's appetite for local food in a system that's mostly controlled by huge chain stores?

How do you help farmers receive a fair price for their products, instead of just getting what's left over after the retailers take their cut?

Larry Yee is working on it.

Yee is director of a new program under USDA's Cooperative State Research, Education, and Extension Service (CSREES). The goal of the program is to create a nationwide producer marketing network that provides consumers better access to locally-grown food and creates a more equitable income for family farms.

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — They drilled the well, pulled out, and then returned again with a special "airlift procedure."

Now, for the second time, East Cocalico Township has quit trying to coax a public water supply from the dairy farm of Paul B. Zimmerman near Ephrata.

Zimmerman said the last week of October that he recently received a letter from the township notifying him of its decision to abandon the well "at the present time."

But Eugene Heft, East Cocalico Water Authority chairman, is making no promises that the township won't be back to tap Zimmerman's well.

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster County Cooperative Extension recently hired Dr. Kenneth Griswold as a new dairy agent, filling the position formerly held by Glenn Shirk.

Griswold brings a lifetime of dairy experience to the job, starting with growing up on a 100-cow dairy farm in Preble, N.Y.

He earned a bachelor's degree in animal science at Cornell University in 1989, completed a master's degree in ruminant nutrition at West Virginia University in 1992, and earned his doctorate in rumen biology/nutrition at the University of Illinois in 1997.

From 1999 to this year, Griswold taught dairy science and management at Southern Illinois University and supervised the student-operated 50-cow dairy center on campus.

Since his undergraduate years,

Dr. Kenneth Griswold

Griswold has participated in numerous research activities involving ruminant nutrition and microbiology, and authored a number of articles on these topics.

He has recently studied the production of conjugated linoleic acid (CLA)-enhanced meat and milk, and the use of by-products to produce alternative agricultural products.

Beside his academic experience, Griswold has worked as a herdsman, feed management consultant, and independent dairy groomer/fitter.

Griswold's hiring comes at a time when Penn State is facing budgetary constraints. No state budget has been approved.

Leon Ressler, Lancaster County extension director, said Gris-

Javier Moreno, a Culebra, Puerto Rico resident, is one of six individuals elected to hold national office. Moreno, 20, is a member of the S.U. Antonia Serrano FFA Chapter and a sophomore at Penn State University. He is the son of Israel Moreno and Gloria Sanchez, and his advisors are David Cordero and Marivetter Valentin.

Moreno's host family are Bill and Deb Lovett, Lebanon.

On his Website, <http://www.personal.psu.edu/users/j/i/jim122/aboutme1.htm>, Moreno details his love for education and his involvement in FFA.

According to information from his Website, Moreno was born Aug. 15, 1983, to Israel Moreno and Gloria Sanchez, their sixth child, in San Juan, Puerto Rico. When he was two years old, he moved to Orlando, Fla., where, Javier noted, he had "many wonderful experiences." He went back to Puerto Rico where he Joseyane Carro, Lancaster, purchased this 1920's quilt at an auction. The piece had been in a barn for decades and was so filthy the dry cleaners wouldn't even take it. Carro washed the quilt in her own washing machine. The quilt has a many-layered history. When one top would wear thin, it would be replaced with another directly over top of the first. "I think there are about seven layers," said Carro. Turn to page B23 to read more.

Compared to Thursday, slaughter steers sold steady on Monday, with a very light Tuesday run trending up to 1.00 higher. Although, buyers were forced to give a little more on Tuesday if they wanted to put any numbers on a truck. The quality of the two-day sale was below average as the long-fed cattle remain scarce. This has brought the price of the average Choice and Select cattle higher as packers scramble for numbers. The beef industry seems to be sailing in the smooth waters for the time being (it's still early in the week though), especially when compared to the volatility of the market throughout the month of October. The spot November live cattle contract at the CME was unchanged at Tuesday's closing, at 97.17. The boxed beef market has made slight moves on both sides of steady through Tuesday, with Choice cuts at around 169.00. If prices were to plateau at the current levels it would be a victory for feeders, but would come to the packers dislike. The slaughter Holstein and heifer offerings were both very light in Vintage, and a trend was never established. Lean slaughter cows sold weak to .50 lower, with the fleshier cows trending 1.00-3.00 lower; mostly 2.00-3.00 lower. Slaughter bulls sold mostly 2.00 lower on a light test. Compared to last Thursday, slaughter steers sold fully 3.00-5.00 higher in active trading; when this week's weighted averages are compared to last weeks prices are as much as 6.00 higher. Bidding was active for the entirety of the auction as receipts continue to come in pretty light, as there were less than 400 head on offer. The quality is also suffering, as there are not very many packages of high Choice and Prime cattle available, there are not even a whole lot of hard-fed singles available for that matter. Just as soon as the finished market begins to show some signs of stabilizing, it is thrown right back into the mixer. The majority of the Western cattle complex moved cattle higher mid-week, which set the tone to close the week out. Nebraska sales were steady to 1.00 higher on a live basis from 105.00-106.00, with dressed sales 5.00 higher from 165.00-167.00. The Board responded on Thursday with limit-up gains from spot November to spot February, with closing bids from 91.50-99.90 respectively. The meat market was not heavily affected by the higher finished movement, with the Choice cutout from 169.80-169.91 on Thursday night. The slaughter Holstein run was light on Thursday in New Holland, and a trend was not established. Slaughter heifers sold 2.00-4.00 higher when compared to last week. Lean slaughter cows sold 1.50 to 2.50 higher than last week and a full 5.00 higher than early in the week. Fleishy cows sold mostly 2.00 to 3.00 higher than last Thursday's sale and 4.00 to 5.00 higher than early week sales. Slaughter bulls sold steady to 2.00 higher. The supply included 375 head of slaughter steers, 80 head of slaughter heifers, 579 head of slaughter cows, 136 head of slaughter bulls, with 320 head of feeder cattle.

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.

November 5, 2003

Report Supplied by USDA

SPOT PRICES OF CLASS II CREAM, dollars per lb butterfat F.O.B. producing plants Northeast 1.5480-1.7267 Delivered Equivalent Atlanta 1.5957-1.7624 mostly 1.6195-1.7028

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants Northeast Class II, includes monthly formula prices. 8700-9300 Class III, spot prices 1.2000-1.3000

SPOTS SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK FLORIDA This Week In 95, Out 0, Last Week In 128, Out 0, Last Year In 95, Out 0 SOUTHEAST STATES This Week In 00, Out 0; Last Week In 0, Out 0, Last Year In 0, Out 0

EDITOR'S NOTE Due to changes in milk supply agreements, milk import/export totals are not directly comparable to year ago figures and to shipments prior to April 1, 2003.

The following are the October 2003 Class and component prices under the Federal Milk Order pricing system. Class II $10.84 (up $0.08 from September), Class III $14.39 (up $0.09), and Class IV $10.16 (up $0.11). The following are the product price averages used in computing Class prices. butter $1.1611, NDM $0.8109, cheese $1.5936, and dry whey $0.1892. The Class II butterfat price is $1.2623 and the Class III/IV butterfat price is $1.2553.

Milk production is reported as steady in most of the region. The gains seen in parts of the Southeast seem to have slowed and the decreases seen in the Northeast also seem to have eased. In the more northern areas, November is often the low month of the year for milk output on a daily average basis. Fluid milk supplies are still tight. Class I needs are holding at fairly good levels. Some manufacturers are moving more milk to bottlers. The good call for skim milk and Class II condensed skim is reducing the need for dryer time and some cheese makers continue to report lighter production runs due to the tight milk supply. Bottled milk sales are steady at fair to good levels. The striking or locked out workers that shut down several large retail chains, have voted to accept a new contract and stores are reopening as quickly as they can be restocked. Florida's need for milk eased lower as production is increasing slowly.

The condensed skim market is little changed from past weeks. Contract sales of Class II are moving nicely and spot interest is fair to good. Spot demand for Class III wet solids is limited.

The fluid cream market is mostly steady at firm levels. Spot prices are mixed. Last week's CME butter average did increase, but it is being offset by lower multiples. Suppliers report that cream offerings are still tight and demand is improving. Contacts note that supplies often loosen up late in the week, but the opposite seems true this week. The increased usage in holiday items, the improved call from butter makers, and tight surplus milk volumes are often cited as reasons for the tight cream supply. Ice cream makers are shifting into fall/winter schedules, but most are making their holiday flavors and staying busy. Bottled cream production is picking up seasonally as is egg nog and dips. Cream cheese output is steady to heavier when extra cream may be available. Butter output is increasing as producers want more fresh butter for holiday orders. Some producers are actively looking for more cream.

Historic Weather

November, take flail, let ships no more sail!" advises the weather lore. November 15, 1900, gave Watertown, New York, 45 inches of snow. On November 16, 1958, Tucson, Arizona, received 6 inches of snow. On that day in 1959, the thermometer dropped to -53°F in Lincoln, Montana. On November 17, 1927, Washington, D.C., was hit by a tornado. If this marked the end of mild-mannered Indian summer (traditionally Nov. 11 to 20), we wonder what winter brought!

Potato Gratin in Minutes

2 cups whole milk
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 tsp. chopped fresh thyme
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
1 tsp. butter
2 large baking potatoes, peeled and sliced thinly
1/4 cup grated Parmesan

Preheat broiler and grease four 4-ounce ramekins. Boil milk and stir in seasonings and butter. Add potatoes and simmer for 10 minutes. Place ramekins onto a baking sheet, spoon mixture evenly among ramekins. Sprinkle with grated Parmesan, and heat under broiler for 5 to 7 minutes. MAKES 4 SERVINGS.

OPINION

Farming Door-To-Door

An agricultural leader in Susquehanna County once noted that, to sustain agriculture, you need a very strong bond between those who produce and those who consume.

Nicely said. There is so much of the "talk the talk." Now, are there examples of being able to "walk the walk"?

We hear from our friends at Cornell University about one such endeavor. And this is what many farms have to do in times when the consumer has more of a voice, almost by the moment, about how food is produced.

We have the following information courtesy the folks at Cornell:

"Locally produced" is not just a concept to Jim McDowell. It's the very foundation of his new business, The Small Street Co-op, Eaton, N.Y. When he isn't producing records or arranging music with his wife Dianne, Jim is taking to the roads of central New York to assemble a variety of naturally grown and organically produced foods. Once assembled, he delivers them door-to-door to his customers.

The Small Street Co-op, in its second year, provides this service every week during the spring, summer, and fall.

Jim and Dianne have supported alternative agriculture and the farmers who practice it for more than 25 years. They are among a growing number of consumers who want to know how and where their food is produced. Along with these questions, they have often wondered about the quality of the foods that are produced in massive quantities, and then reassembled, processed, and distributed by the large companies that dominate the food system in the U.S.

By listing only locally produced, organic products in the co-op's quarterly catalog, Small Street insures accountability, helping customers to know how and where each product is grown or raised. And by supporting smaller family farms, the co-op encourages good stewardship of the land and rewards the use of environmentally friendly practices.

While it might appear at first glance as if Jim has set himself up as the notorious "middleman," nothing could be further from the truth.

❖ FARM FORUM ❖

Editor:

Plunging beef production is the primary reason why cattle prices soared to all-time highs during the later end of October. And mad cow disease is still a concern for many countries including Japan.

Consequently the import ban on Canadian cattle by the United States is likely to be extended beyond the end of 2003. The further restriction is likely to exacerbate a decline in beef production here in the U.S., since many U.S. farmers rely on Canadian feeder calves in order to raise fed cattle for U.S. meat markets.

Higher beef prices and drought conditions in the Midwest also encouraged cattlemen to sell off their steers at lighter weights because of the economics of raising beef, namely the opportunity cost of holding them. Up until recently, a large portion of cattle being sold are at lighter weights, typically between 800 to 900 pounds.

Light steers are different than fed cattle, which are normally sold to meat markets. Light steers

Lancaster County Extension Director

To Welcome Lancaster's New Dairy Agent

Dr. Ken Griswold joined the Lancaster County Extension office staff on Nov. 3 (see the story on page 1 this week).

Ken fills the position vacated by Glenn Shirk when he retired last year. Ken comes to us from the University of Southern Illinois, where he served as an assistant professor of ruminant nutrition and managed the dairy center. He earned his doctorate at the University of Southern Illinois in rumen microbiology/nutrition and his master's degree in ruminant nutrition at West Virginia University. Ken earned his bachelor's degree in animal science at Cornell University. Ken grew up on a New York dairy farm and is looking forward to the opportunity to work directly with farmers.

To Prepare Your Feed Bin System For Winter

Feed quality is something that is a partnership in the poultry and livestock industries.

Gregory Martin, capitol region poultry agent, points out feed mills do their best to deliver the highest quality feed to the farm. The rest is up to the farm manager to maintain that feed from point of delivery to the point of consumption. Winter does pose a special challenge to keep feed fresh, but with proper bin management the effects of winter can be diminished.

Bins should be set up in gangs of two or more bins and rotated in use. This allows feed to fully be used before the next load is started. Dumping new feed on top of old is not recommended. This is due in part to the dead spots that occur as the bin is used, leaving some feed behind until the bin is just about empty. By rotation, you are assured of keeping the feed fresh and in proper formulation. Rotating the bins also allows all augers to be lubricated by feed to help reduce rust buildup on the auger.

Periodically (at least twice a year), a full inspection of the bin should be made. Hang a drop light into the bin and inspect the bin at night for any holes or open seams. Especially check near bolts and ring splice points on the bin. Replace bolts and caulk any seams that are leaking light from the bin. In addition, be sure that the ladder and support legs are in sound condition and that the bin lid or fill door seats correctly at the top in the closed position. Replace any ropes or chains that are showing undue wear, because this does become a problem for the delivery driver onsite.

The bin boot should be inspected as well for undue wear. Be sure that all equipment associated with the boot is in proper order. Auger tubes should not be worn through and patches in this area of the feed system are not recommended. Be sure to look at the boot seals when light-inspecting a bin to help prevent water contamination of the boot via rain leakage.

Lastly, clean your bins before the onset of winter. Because of the higher humidity that will be present in the air, any moldy feed left in the bin may seed mold in any feed placed within it. Brushing or air-blasting any feed that is sticking to the inside of a bin is recommended to help prevent the propagation of mold in the bin. Be sure to include the outside of the bin and the floor below the bin to complete the cleaning. By doing so, you are preventing the spread of mycotoxins and other contaminants of feed from reaching your birds or livestock.

To Be Aware Of A New Fungicide Available For Berry Production

Kathy Demchak in Penn State's Horticulture Department reports Pristine fungicide from BASF has been approved for use in berry crops including blueberries, currants, gooseberries, huckleberries, blackberries, raspberries, and strawberries.

Pristine is a mixture of two active ingredients. One is boscalid, which is also found in Endura, recently labeled for grapes and other crops, and the other is pyraclostrobin, the active ingredient also found in Cabrio.

Pristine can be used for a number of diseases, including gray mold, anthracnose, common leaf spot, and powdery mildew on strawberries, mummy berry and phomopsis on blueberries, and anthracnose and various rusts on canberries. Please see the label for a listing of other diseases for which it can be used.

In trials at Penn State, Pristine provided very good control against gray mold (at least as good as Ronilan or better) and common leaf spot on strawberries. Additionally, Pristine provided very good control against gray mold, Septoria leaf spot, and various other diseases on raspberries.

Quote Of The Week:

GOD'S ADDRESS

Background Scripture:

1 John 3:11 through 4:21.

Devotional Reading:

1 Corinthians 13:1-13.

In a cartoon, a little boy asks his father, "Do we know God's e-mail address?"

Actually, it is not all that hard to find God's address. 1 John makes it easy for us: "...if we love one another, God abides in us and his love is perfected in us" (4:12b). If you love your neighbor (as Jesus defined "neighbor"), and you live at 917 Grove Street, Any Town, then that is God's address. God lives where people love their neighbor.

That's the easy part. The hard part is pinpointing what is meant by loving "one another." It can mean many different and even conflicting things. It is much more than sentimentality.

In one of his novels, Herman Melville characterizes this love as "a volume bound in rose-leaves, clasped with violets, and by the beaks of hummingbirds printed with peach-juice on the leaves of lilies." That is not what we mean.

1 John is referring to love of the brothers and sisters of the church. But he is not limiting love's outreach, but rather focusing it upon the church where there was a specific love deficit. When he says "For this is the message which we have heard from the beginning, that we should love one another...", I think he is referring to the command of Jesus to "love your neighbor as yourself" (Mk 12:31). As the good Samaritan demonstrated, one's neighbor is anyone who needs us.

Love In Deed

Actually, some of us don't do well with love either in the church or outside of it. We may employ the word frequently, but, says 1 John, "Little children, let us not love in word of speech but in deed and in truth" (3:18). If love needs some kind of rule-of-thumb, he spells it out simply: "But if anyone has the world's goods and sees his brother in need, yet closes his heart against him, how does God's love abide in him?" In many of our churches, sacrificial benevolence for those in need is an optional and marginal activity. So how does God's love abide in us?

1 John tells us that Christian love is manifested in deeds, just as Jesus demonstrated his love for us: "By this we know love, that he laid down his life for us: and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren" (3:17). Jesus gave us neither a philosophy nor even a theology of love, but a command and example. "In this the love of God was made manifest among us, that God sent his only Son into the world, so that we might live through him" (4:10).

If we are in doubt as to what this "love" is all about, we need only look to Jesus. Love may begin with a feeling and be expressed in words, but it usually also means sacrificial acts.

"There is no fear in love, but perfect love casts out fear" (4:18).

In both my personal and pastoral experience I have found that fear often robs us of the capacity to love. That person we hate is usually someone whom we perceive as threatening to our well-being.

Prejudices are most often engendered by fear. So, we conclude that we cannot love someone because that person threatens us. When fear comes first, love seldom is able to follow. But if love comes first, than fear does not have a chance.

Love As Resolve

This Christ-like love is not first a feeling, but a resolve to be like Jesus, to be and do the loving thing. As Christ was nailed to the cross, I'm sure that what he was feeling for his followers was not so much affection, but a resolve in spite of their disloyalty.

On the cross, Jesus was not waiting for his disciples to first demonstrate their love, for "We love, because he first loved us" (4:19). Neither can we wait to receive love before we give it. Nor can we wait for an affectionate feeling before we go to our own crosses.

Many are concerned that Christianity seems to be losing ground and that other faiths are growing. If Christians would lay aside their disputes, criticisms, and rancor, and focus upon Christ-like love of neighbors both inside and outside our churches, there would be nothing to fear. If we are not attracting neighbors to Christ, it may be because they do not see him in us or know where to find him.

So, does God abide at your address?

"We would use slats again if doing it all over"

Harold Keeney; David, Nancy & Mark Wolfskill

Our original plan was to install scrapers. But after 10 minutes in a slatted barn in Somerset County, we changed our minds. Some people stay away from slats because of the initial cost, but that extra cost is made up for in the first couple years.

The one thing I like the most about slats is that there is no expense. I don't have any scrapers or drive units to maintain. I don't have to run scrapers every day or haul manure like we did in our previous tie stall barn. The cows' foot health has been a lot better, and the cows stay much cleaner. Our milk production is up and the somatic cell count has gone down. I give at least some of the credit to the slats because with less moisture on the floor, there is less bacteria.

- David Wolfskill

Most lots of 40-60 weight pigs have a sliding value from the negotiated weight basis which is calculated on the actual average weight of the load plus or minus 30-40 per pound. Some early weaned lots have a slide of .50-1.00 per pound. Early weaned pigs are under 19 days old. Estimated lean value is projected to use slaughter weights with normal confinement feeding conditions. Vaccination and health program values are not included but health status should be disclosed.

BLOCK CHEESE PRICES DECLINE SHARPLY
• CME blocks fall to $1.4850/pound.

- Butter holding firmly.
- CME futures are lower.

Block and barrel cheese prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange finally gave in to lower prices. Block prices fell from $1.60 per pound on Monday, Oct. 27 to $1.4850 by week's end. Barrels fell from $1.50 per pound on Monday to $1.4575. There wasn't much in the way of actually trades, but it is apparent that there were more offers to sell than bids to buy.

Much of this price decline was expected. Cheese yields and milk production has been recovering and is more than adequate to meet current "fresh" market needs. As the fear of market shortages disappeared, cheese buyers held back in anticipation of future price reductions. That gets the ball rolling in a downward spiral. Tempering the rate of price decline, however, is the fact that buyers are in the market in preparation for holiday needs.

USDA released their estimates of January through August commercial disappearance. This is a measure of consumption, or actual product eaten by consumers. They are based on USDA estimates of production, imports, change in inventory, government removals, and exports. I have my own estimates based on a new Penn State dairy industry model. Differences between my estimates and USDA estimates are likely because of different measures of imports.

USDA shows butter consumption through August was 0.7 percent behind a year ago. My numbers show it is more like -2.4 percent. American cheese consumption through August was estimated by USDA to be 0.6 percent behind a year ago. My figure is -1.6 percent. Finally, other cheese, an estimate of Italian cheese consumption, was estimated by USDA to be 1.8 percent ahead of a year ago. My estimate is 1.4 percent, almost the same.

Both my estimates and that of USDA suggest that consumption of key dairy products for the first eight months of this year have not been very exciting. That may explain why cash market prices for cheese are now showing signs of weakness. This is what economists call "market fundamentals."

Class III futures at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange indicate that November futures are down from more than $14 per CWT in the prior month to $13.16 per CWT. December futures are at $11.90 per CWT. Expect both of these to decline some in the weeks ahead.

Class III futures for the first six months of 2004 averaged $11.44 per CWT. For all of 2004 they averaged $11.94, still at a pretty good level. Producers who are interested in protecting milk prices may want to consider looking at these prices since they are close to 5-year averages.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Grumbine Judges Blue Valley Swine Show

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent
BANGOR (Northampton Co.) — The 4-H market swine competition was recently conducted during the Blue Valley Farm Show.

Judge for the event was Dennis Grumbine, former Farm show director and past president of the Pennsylvania Livestock Association (PLA). A lifelong farmer and livestock producer, the Lebanon County resident has been involved in county fairs and the 4-H program all his life.

For his champion fitter Grumbine selected Nicole Kondziela, 19, from the senior division. Kondziela, daughter of Tim and Terry Kondziela completed her last year of 4-H eligibility and will be starting her second year at Green Mountain College, Vermont, majoring in secondary education with a concentration in history.

For his reserve fitter, Grumbine went with the winner of the junior competition first-year member Hanna Bauman, 8, daughter of Mel and Anita Bauman, Bangor. Bauman is in the fourth grade at DeFranco Elementary School and completed the sheep, dairy goat and market swine projects this year as well as belonging to the Backtrackers Horse 4-H Club.

Champion showman honors went to Jennifer Hower, 18, daughter of Ned and Linda Hower, Bethlehem. In her first year of the market swine project, Hower is a recent graduate of Nazareth High School and is attending Northampton County Community College working towards a major in elementary and special education. Hower also completed the beef breeding, market steer, and horse production projects and is a member of the Northampton County 4-H teen council.

The reserve showman title went to Joel Geiger, 18-year-old son of Sherwood and Kathy Geiger, Danielsville. Geiger will be continuing his education at Penn State-Lehigh Campus majoring in Ag Business. Geiger, a member of the livestock and Clever Clover Community 4-H clubs, and Northampton County 4-H teen council and has served as a 4-H ambassador and attended the 4-H National Congress. Geiger also received the champion bred and owned market swine banner.

In reviewing the entries, Grumbine selected the 257-pound Duroc/Hampshire cross gilt from the heavy weight class of first year member Hanna Bauman as his grand champion market hog.

The reserve champion market hog rosette went to the 219 pound winner of the medium weight class exhibited by Andrew Hower, 12. In his third year of the 4-H swine project and fourth year of 4-H, Hower will be in the seventh grade at Northampton Middle School. Hower, son of Blair and Amy Hower, is also a member of the Clever Clovers Community 4-H club and completed the potato judging project this year.

Blue Valley Farm Show Conducts Beef Show

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent
BANGOR (Northampton Co.)
— Gary Dean, Lancaster, judged the dairy beef, beef breeding and market steer shows at the Eastern Pennsylvania 4-H Livestock Show and Sale during the Blue Valley Farm Show. Dean, a Penn State University graduate, is the Business Development Manager at Purina Mills.

Starting with the 4-H and Open Beef Fitting and Showmanship competition, Dean selected Jennifer Hower as the 4-H champion fitter and showman. Hower, daughter of Ned and Linda Hower, Bethlehem, is a recent graduate of Nazareth High School and is attending Northampton County Community College working towards a major in elementary and special education.

Going to the intermediate division for his reserve 4-H fitter and showman Dean selected Elena Poliskiewicz, daughter of Phil

Poliskiewicz and Wendy Moore.

The champion fitter and showman titles in the open beef competition went to Gwen Wagner, Danielsville, with Hower following in the reserve fitter and showman spot.

In the market steer competition Dean selected the 1,175 pound entry of Gwen Wagner as his champion of the open division. Describing the champion from the heavy weight class Dean liked the way the steer was balanced and uniform with more natural thickness making the animal the most complete of the competition. Following in the reserve champion spot was Wagner's son, Paul, with his 1,030 pound entry described as well balanced from side and behind and following the type of the champion.

Jennifer Hower saw her 1,120 pound entry from the heavy weight class tapped as the champion of the 4-H market steer competition. The reserve champion title went to Elena Poliskiewicz and her 1,035 pound bred and owned entry. This entry of Poliskiewicz also received the champion bred and owned banner of the show.

Moving on to the beef breeding competition Dean named the Oct. 2001 senior yearling of Hower, Kruegers Erica 76L as the champion 4-H and Open Angus heifer with Hower's Feb. 2003 Just Enuff Flashback Julie receiving the reserve champion rosette.

Champion 4-H and Open Angus cow/calf honors went to Hower's Feb. 2001 Just Enuff LS3000C Jodie with her Feb. 2003 heifer calf at side. This calf had previously been named the reserve champion Angus heifer by Dean. Reserve champion cow/calf honors went to Hower for her Aug. 1998 J E A Wide-spread Mascara also having a Feb. 2003 heifer at her side.

Poliskiewicz then captured the champion Simmental heifer honors in both the 4-H and Open division with her March 2002 entry, SweetnSassy. Her July 2002 summer yearling entry then moved into the reserve champion 4-H and Open Simmental heifer spot.

Jesse Poliskiewicz then received the champion and reserve champion rosettes of the Open competition for his cow/calf entries.

The supreme champion bull title went to Elena Poliskiewicz for her Dec. 2002 Simmental fall bull entry. Hower went home with the supreme champion heifer and cow/calf honors with Elena Poliskiewicz capturing the reserve supreme heifer rosette. Jesse Poliskiewicz received the reserve supreme cow/calf award.

Finishing the night with the dairy beef competition Dean selected Bryan Dietrich from the intermediate division as his champion fitter. Reserve fitter honors went to Diana Holder.

As his champion showman Dean selected Holder with Stephanie Brewer named the reserve champion showman.

As his champion dairy beef Dean selected the 556 pound entry of Dietrich from the heavy weight class. The champion was described as being more naturally balanced and cleaner throughout the lower third. Following closest in type as reserve champion was the 532 pound entry of Diana Holder from the medium weight class.

Sollenberger Silos Marks 20 Years At The Farm Show

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — This year's Farm Show will mark the 20th anniversary of the Sollenberger Silos exhibit in Harrisburg. Since 1983, Sollenberger Silos has utilized the Farm Show as an opportunity to develop leads for their business.

"It is a good opportunity to meet farmers. Typically the Farm Show has been our best leads for silos," said Bob Francis, national sales manager. "The Farm Show is a place to talk to farmers about their storage needs and we would like to meet their storage needs."

Sollenberger Silos Corporation, founded by Avery Sollenberger, has been in business since 1908. The company changed hands in 1982 when it was purchased by Craig Nitterhouse. Since the company's purchase in 1982, they have remained a permanent fixture at the Farm Show.

This year, they will be located in the new Exposition Hall, where their 20-foot area display will have pictures depicting their various services and storage options in addition to literature on their products.

"We have a wide-ranging business," said Francis. The company's product lines include upright silos, bunker silos, manure storage, farm equipment, and items for non-agricultural use, such as cell phone towers and industrial storage.

"In 1997, we received a call from a cell phone company," said Francis. "The local area did not want a steel tower. (As a compromise,) a farmer suggested a silo." Since then Sollenberger has worked with several large cell phone companies to install cell phone towers on top of silos.

Francis also said that the Farm Show is an excellent opportunity to meet with the nonfarm public and develop new leads, such as municipalities for storage of cinders and salt for winter road maintenance.

This silo one of the many built by Sollenberger Silos measures 24 feet in diameter and 104 feet tall. The silo has an elevated floor for truck drive through, so the truck can be loaded quickly. The silo is equipped with the Big Jim Quantum loader for fast filling and fast feed delivery.

Purdue To Feature Results Of Producer Survey During Conference

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Survey results of the 2003 Commercial Producer Project soon will be released by the Center for Food and Agricultural Business at Purdue University.

"Serving Commercial Producers: Meeting Needs, Adding Value" is the title for this year's National Conference for Agribusiness, which is being planned for November 19-20, on the Purdue campus in West Lafayette, Ind.

This is one of the largest surveys of its kind and is much anticipated by the agribusinesses that interact with these producers. This comprehensive survey includes results of interviews with more than 2300 large commercial US agricultural producers in each of the following segments of the marketplace: corn/soybean; wheat/barley/canola; cotton; vegetable; swine; dairy; and beef.

Survey responses come from virtually every part of the U.S. and focus on those operations with more than $500,000 in annual gross farm income.

For more information, contact the Center for Food and Agricultural Business at (765) 494-4247, or send e-mail to agbusinessinfo@purdue.edu.

Slaughter Cattle Weekly Review

Oklahoma City, Okla.

October 31, 2003

Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL SLAUGHTER CATTLE SUMMARY - Week Ending October 31 - Compared to last week: Slaughter steers and heifers 4.00-6.00 higher in the Midwest; northern markets began the week with 2.00-5.00 lower but ending the week steady to 2.00 higher. Packer demand turned good late in the week as packers had to rely on the cash trade instead of contracts for numbers. Cattle futures continue on what seems to be a continual roller coaster ride. Boxed beef prices finally showing some stabilization after a long ride down. However the holidays are just around the corner and the usual ads of turkey and ham will go on display. Boxed beef values Friday opened at an average of 155.80 down 11.55 from last Friday and down 33.73 from two weeks ago. Sales of slaughter cattle on a national basis for negotiated cash trades were improved from last week and totaled 204,000 thru 10:00 a.m. Friday morning. Last week's full count was 141,300 head.

MIDWEST DIRECT MARKETS. Steers and Heifers: Live Basis: 35-80 percent Choice, 900-1400 lbs 95.50-105.00, wtd avg 100.96. Dressed Basis: 35-80 percent Choice, 550-950 lbs 153.50-163.00, wtd avg 160.74.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Review

St. Joseph, Mo.

October 31, 2003

Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER & STOCKER CATTLE SUMMARY for week ending Oct. 31 - Total Receipts: 457,000; last week 516,000; last year 426,000. Direct: 51,400; last week 46,400, last year 62,300. Video/Internet: 51,400; last week 33,100, last year 26,200. Auctions: 405,200; last week 436,500, last year 328,100. This week's reported auction volume included only 25 percent over 600 lbs and 44 percent heifers.

Compared to last week, stocker cattle prices were very uneven but the gains outweighed the losses in most cases. Some areas were sharply higher, like the Southern Plains and Montana, but these were the same places that posted the sharpest losses last week. The Southeastern calf markets were 1.00-3.00 lower for the most part, but varied widely as buyers were working with selective orders that were very particular as to quality, breed, and flesh condition. The most consistent markets were for northern cattle from Nebraska up through the Dakotas and out west, where the fall calf runs are in full swing. These fancy high country ranch calves sold firm to 3.00 higher with good demand from northern feeders that have cashed-in on the recent fed cattle market. The availability of true yearling feeders remains extremely limited, but the few that made their way through auction rings this week were fired upon by buyers and sold from 3.00-6.00 higher.

The erratic feeder and stocker trends were provoked by a yo-yo futures market that had the industry scratching its head in bewilderment. Since Wednesday the 22nd, the spot October Live Cattle CME contracts finished their term with the following settlements, limit down, limit up, limit up, 2.55 higher, limit down, 1.47 higher, .12 higher, and .05 lower, finally leaving the Board at 101.75. This string of volatility left hedged cattle feeders either too scared to sell their closeouts or unable to get out of their hedge. Today, it's hard to believe that there was a time when cattle feeders made decisions without having their eyes glued to a screen or their ears glued to the pickup radio. Of course, there was also a time when feeder cattle buyers would bid before the scoreboard flashed the exact weight. In most cases, cattle have their entire future planned before the cow-calf man gets a check in his hand.

Volatility has taken most of the gamblers from the penthouse to the poorhouse too many times to count, but this Fall's trip to the top-floor suite had fewer guests as most lenders require risk management that flattens out the highs and lows. Hopefully, the Board and the cash markets have found some footing as most cattle industry members agree that stabilization anywhere near the current levels would be a victory.

Dairy Stakeholders Conference Set

MIDDLETON (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders 2003 Conference will take place Wednesday and Thursday, December 10-11. This year's event will take place at the Holiday Inn in Grantville.

The theme for the conference is "Setting the Pace; Coming Together to Grow Our Industry." The program is full of exciting and valuable presentations from many different representatives of the dairy industry. Professor David Kohl, Virginia Tech, and Mary Ledman, Keho Ledman Associates, are keynote speakers.

Following a luncheon at 11:30 a.m. on Wednesday, the conference will kick off with a segment on "The State of Our Industry." Monsanto's Fowler Branstetter and Chuck Cruickshank of Land O'Lakes will join Kohl in addressing reasons behind the declining dairy industry infrastructure in other parts of the country and why we need to maintain a viable infrastructure in the Northeast.

George Wolff of PennAg Industries Association, Chris Galen from National Milk Producers, and Gary Smith of the Chester County Economic Task Force will outline ways to get involved in the political process to shape and guide laws and regulations governing the industry in the second segment entitled "Advocating Our Cause."

Governor Ed Rendell has been invited to speak at the Wednesday evening banquet about agriculture and the dairy industry as "The Backbone of Pennsylvania." The Pennsylvania Dairy-men's Association awards will also be presented at the banquet.

Day two of the conference begins with the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders Annual Meeting. Stakeholders President Gary Heckman will present the organization's "2003 Progress, 2004 Plan." Pacesetter Awards will be presented at this meeting, and Dean Robert Steele of Penn State's College of Ag Sciences will speak.

"One Size Does Not Fit All" is the topic of Thursday morning's discussion. Ledman will be joined by Brad Hilty, of Penn State's Dairy Alliance, and a panel of Pennsylvania producers with varying herd sizes to share best management practices that lead to profitability on all sizes of farms.

Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Dennis Wolff will wrap up the conference, encouraging all members of the dairy industry with "Pennsylvania Wants and Needs You!"

Cost to attend the conference is $90. Producers registering in groups of three or more and paying with the same check receive a discounted rate of $75 each. Sleeping rooms are blocked at a special conference rate at the Holiday Inn in Grantville for conference attendees until Nov. 25. Conference registration deadline is Nov. 28. For more information or to register, please contact Michelle Jaymes-Parks at (717) 948-6609 or michelle@padairy-stake.org.

Fluid Milk Tops $18/CWT

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) announced the prices to be paid to Pennsylvania dairy farmers for October Class I milk (beverage) as an average of $18.32 per hundredweight (CWT) in the western areas of the Commonwealth; and an average of $18.81 per CWT in the central and eastern areas of the Commonwealth. These prices include the over-order premium of $1.65 per CWT.

Farmers, whose milk production is pooled under a federal order, will receive a market-wide blend price based upon the value of all classes of milk. However, the blend price received will vary as the component composition of a farmer's milk differs from the established benchmarks of 3.5 percent butterfat, 2.99 percent protein, and 5.69 percent other solids.

New Bolton Center Switches To Digital Radiography

KENNETT SQUARE (Chest-er Co.) — Penn's George D. Widener Hospital for Large Animals at New Bolton Center became the first hospital (human or animal) in the U.S. to use a portable digital radiography system with a 14x17 digital sensor panel.

The new equipment, installed in September, enables radiologists to radiograph skulls, necks, thoracic, and abdominal areas of horses and other large animals. The previously installed 9x11 inch sensor panel permits digital radiographs of limbs or other small areas.

"This new digital sensor panel allows us to capture a large radiographic image in seconds," said Dr. Alexia McKnight, lecturer in radiology at New Bolton Center. "If the image isn't positioned correctly, we can quickly repeat it. With film we had to wait for the developed image which took time and often meant that the animal had to be re-sedated if a view needed to be repeated."

McKnight explains that digital radiography provides more detailed images than traditional films. There is improved contrast and the information is easier to interpret. This is because the software allows manipulating the raw data to bring into view more diagnostic information.

"We can see subtle bony lesions much more clearly on digital radiographs," said Dr. McKnight. "Also, subtle fractures are visible. They don't show up on film, and we used to use xerography, which required a significantly higher exposure. The digital system is much more efficient for us and better for the patients because we can perform our study much faster and with shorter sedation time. The ability to accurately measure angles and distances on the images has also been a wonderful bonus of the digital system. It also enhances our referral capabilities because of the amount of detail we can capture through this technology."

The system provides other efficiencies. Technicians no longer have to develop film and work with chemicals. The images are stored on a Picture Archiving and Communication System (PACS) that is the size of a washing machine, so storage space needs are less. The system is also backed up daily to an off-site center in California.

The digital images can be retrieved quickly on computers throughout the hospital, enabling clinicians to view them in their offices. McKnight, the other radiologists, and the clinicians can review the images on special high resolution grayscale monitors that are quite large. The images can be enlarged and the radiologist can zoom in on an area. Because of the incredible detail and digital archiving, the system makes it much easier for teaching students who are rotating through large animal radiology.

USDA Launches Beginning Farmer, Rancher Pilot Loan Program In Pa.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Richard Pallman, state executive director for USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA) in Pennsylvania, unveiled the Beginning Farmer and Rancher Land Contract Guarantee Pilot Program.

The program will help determine whether guarantees on land contracts facilitate the transfer of agricultural property to beginning farmers and ranchers.

"With an increasing number of producers approaching retirement age, America must continue to invest in beginning farmers and ranchers to ensure adequate food and fiber supplies for the future," said Pallman. "The Beginning Farmer and Rancher Land Contract Pilot Program gives USDA the opportunity to see if guarantees on land contracts are a viable alternative in the effort to assist beginning producers in purchasing land."

The 2002 Farm Bill requires the creation of the Pilot Program. In addition to Pennsylvania, USDA is implementing the pilot program in Indiana, North Dakota, Oregon, Wisconsin and Iowa during fiscal years 2003-2007. Every year, funding will be available to each of the six pilot states to provide up to five land contract guarantees.

"Beginning producers can face a number of challenges such as adverse weather or market conditions that can have devastating effects, especially in the early years of operations," said Pallman. "This important program provides beginning farmers and ranchers with a safety net so they can remain on the land and continue building their businesses."

The Pilot Program provides the seller of the land a 10-year "prompt payment" guarantee of the sale to the beginning farmer or rancher (buyer). In the event that the buyer does not pay an annual installment due on the contract, or pays only part of an installment, USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA) will provide the scheduled payment or the unpaid portion to the seller through an escrow agent. The guarantee is limited to the total monetary amount of two installments. The guarantee will also cover the amount of two years' worth of unpaid taxes and insurance.

The following are some of the eligibility requirements prospective buyers must meet:

- The buyer must be a beginning farmer or rancher and must be the owner of a family farm after the contract is completed.
- The buyer must have participated in the business operations of a farm or ranch for at least three years.
- The buyer must have an acceptable credit history demonstrated by satisfactory debt repayment.

• The buyer must be unable to obtain sufficient credit elsewhere without a guarantee to finance actual needs at reasonable rates and terms.

The purchase price of the farm or ranch cannot exceed $500,000 or its current market value as determined by FSA. The interest rate charged to the buyer for the 10-year term of the guarantee cannot exceed FSA's direct farm ownership loan interest rate in effect at the time the guarantee is issued, plus three percentage points. Contract payments must be amortized for a minimum of 20 years. During the term of the guarantee, balloon payments are prohibited and payments on the contract must be of equal amounts.

FSA offers direct and guaranteed loans to individual and entity producers' use to buy new farms, equipment, feed and other farming essentials. Special loan programs exist for beginning farmers and ranchers, socially disadvantaged persons and rural youth. Each year, FSA makes thousands of loans to farmers and ranchers who cannot obtain private, commercial credit.

You can obtain more information about this and other FSA programs by contacting the FSA office in one of the fifty USDA Service Centers serving Pennsylvania producers. Offices are listed in the U.S. Government section of the Blue Pages in the telephone directory under Agriculture or visit FSA on the World Wide Web at www.fsa.usda.gov.

Ohio State Ag Program One Of Country's Best, Says U.S. News

COLUMBUS, Ohio — One of Ohio State University's departments has been recognized as one of the nation's top undergraduate agricultural engineering programs.

The Department of Food, Agricultural, and Biological Engineering — within the College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences — made the top 10 of colleges surveyed for top undergraduate engineering programs that specialize in agriculture. The results were among the college rankings highlighted in the 2004 U.S. News and World Report "America's Best Colleges."

"I congratulate the Department of Food, Agricultural, and Biological Engineering in its ranking as one of the best programs in the country," said Bobby Moser, dean of the College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences. "Our college has set a goal of being among the best in the nation. This accomplishment shows significant movement toward that goal."

It is the first time that a department from the college has been among U.S. News and World Report's academic rankings.

The survey ranked engineering college programs accredited by the Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology. The rankings were based solely on the judgments of deans and senior faculty who rated each program they were familiar with on a scale from one (marginal) to five (distinguished). Participants were asked to survey top universities offering special engineering programs — agriculture being one of them.

K.C. Ting, chairman of the Department of Food, Agricultural, and Biological Engineering, said the accomplishment would help give the program and others like it across the nation some recognition.

"I think this accomplishes several things. One, the U.S. News ranking system is a widely read publication and this is a very nice vehicle for publicity. Two, the news helps boost agricultural engineering as a recognized field. Three, the rankings show to everyone that we are one of the top programs in the nation, and it's really nice to be a part of that."

Out of the top 11-ranked undergraduate agricultural engineering programs listed in the publication, five were from Big Ten universities. In addition to Ohio State, Purdue University, University of Illinois, Pennsylvania State University, and Michigan State University also made the list. There are 55 universities in the nation that offer agricultural engineering undergraduate programs; about nine similar programs exist in Canada.

Ohio State's Department of Food, Agricultural, and Biological Engineering, which has ties to the College of Engineering, provides students curriculum options in soil and water, machinery systems, ecological and bio-environmental programs, bio-systems; pre-vet and pre-med and food-related industries.

The Department of Agricultural Engineering came into existence in 1914. The department changed its name to Food, Agricultural, and Biological Engineering in 1996.

started kindergarten in the school Ramn Marn in Guaynabo. Later on, his family moved to Yabucoa, the town where he started first grade.

"My family plays a very important role in my life," Javier noted on his Website. "I have two brothers and two sisters. Their names are Gelmarie, Jari, Glorimar, and Ethiel."

Noted on the Website, at the age of nine, Moreno finished the "DARE" class, committing himself to say "no" to drugs. He did very well in various public speaking contests in the Yabucoa district, often taking first place. He was graduated from sixth grade with high honors.

In 1996, his father was assigned to a church as a pastor in the small town of Mameyes, Jayuya Puerto Rico. Here he first had the opportunity to become a member of the FFA, later becoming one of the chapter leaders and then president of the southern region for Puerto Rico. It was there that Javier began his supervised agricultural experience, which consisted of banana, ornamental plant, and vegetable production. During summers, he participated in the Verna camp sponsored by the Puerto Rican Lung Association. He was a member of the Scholar Board of the S.U. Antonia Serrano School and belonged to the student council.

In 1998, the bishop of the Methodist Church of Puerto Rico consecrated him as the youngest lay preacher of the church. In addition he was a volunteer in the library and community information center in Mameyes, an organization which benefited all the community.

In the ninth grade Language Festival, he won third prize for all of Puerto Rico in short story writing. He was graduated from ninth grade with high honors and won a medal of honor in all of the subjects. He was recognized by the Lions Club and represented his school in the TV quiz bowl. After Hurricane Georges, he worked as a volunteer in the community, giving out first aid articles, clothing, food, and assisting in other ways.

He participated in various FFA contests, both classroom and practical, and won second place in the region for public speaking in Spanish, first place statewide in horticulture, second place statewide for public speaking in Spanish, second place statewide in poultry, and third place regionally in extemporaneous public speaking in Spanish. He participated in workshops for regional directors and chapter officers. He also competed in an environmental public speaking contest at a local and regional level.

According to his Website, in May of 1999, he was elected state vice president of the Puerto Rico Association of the FFA. In June of the same year, he was one of three youth from his church who were sent to the International Youth Mission conference in New Hampshire. In July, he traveled to Washington, D.C. to the FFA State Presidents' Conference where he had the privilege of meeting with Vice President Al Gore, Secretary of Agriculture Daniel Glickman, and Carlos Romero Barcelo, the former governor of Puerto Rico. In October 1999, he attended the 72nd National FFA Convention in Louisville, Ky. and also represented his organization with his fellow officers at the Puerto Rican Agronomist's State Convention.

During the Puerto Rican Soil Week, he was recognized as Young Farmer of the Year. In December he had the honor to attend the farmer's association annual meeting, where he met the governor of Puerto Rico, Sila M. Calderon.

In August 2000, according to his Website, Javier left his family, friends, and country to broaden his knowledge of American agriculture and FFA. He came to Lebanon, Pa. to live with the Bill and Deb Lovett Family.

"My host family also plays an important role in my life," Moreno wrote on his Website. "My host parents are Bill and Deb. I have two brothers (Ben and Matt) and one sister called Julia."

He attended Northern Lebanon High School during his senior year and became a member of the student council, the ecology club, and the FFA chapter. During the year he visited different FFA chapters within the region, offering workshops about teamwork and leadership. He was also invited to speak at several events such as banquets and conferences. In June 2001 he won second place in extemporaneous public speaking and third place in the parliamentary procedures contest at the state level.

In his role as president, Moreno is charged with guiding this year's national FFA officer team and serving as a spokesperson for the organization. In addition, he and his team will serve with the National FFA Board of Directors.

"One of my favorite things in the world is the National FFA Organization," Moreno noted. "I enjoy mingling with people from around the country while learning about agriculture, diversity, and trading."

Fulfilling his position will require traveling more than 100,000 miles; meeting top leaders in business, government, and education; visiting approximately 40 states and participating in an international experience tour to Japan. His responsibilities will include providing personal growth and leadership training for students, setting policies that shape the future of the organization, and promoting agricultural literacy.

The national FFA officer selection process is intense and represents an assessment of years of academic and extracurricular accomplishments made by each student running for office. Nominees must first qualify at the state level to represent their particular state FFA associations. They then submit an in-depth application, detailing their accomplishments and contributions to the community, along with an essay detailing why they desire to be elected to the position. Once at the convention, candidates participate in six rounds of interviews, take an in-depth written test on the organization and agricultural education topics, and complete a writing exercise.

A panel of nine state FFA officers comprises the nominating committee that proposes the slate of six national officers for approval by the convention delegates.

As an FFA member, Moreno received the National FFA H.O. Sargent Award. He was recognized for chapter scholarship, public speaking, and parliamentary procedure activities.

At school, Moreno is involved in the Alliance Christian Fellowship, Ag Advocates, MANNRS and Earth House. His goal during his year of service is to make a genuine difference in the lives of members and friends of the FFA.

He was accepted to Penn State University for the fall 2001 semester, but decided to work for a year in order to help finance his education. He is a freshman at Penn State and is majoring in agricultural education. Moreno has continued to be active in his community by serving as a member of the Lebanon County Drug and Alcohol Executive Commission.

FFA is a national organization of 464,267 members preparing for leadership and careers in the science, business, and technology of agriculture with 7,194 local chapters in all 50 states, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. Visit www.ffa.org for more information.

want high-quality, local food," Yee said. "We also know they want to save family farms."

The public is willing to pay more for locally-grown food, according to Yee. He referred to a 2001-2002 national survey of 819 U.S. adults conducted by a team of scientists from 11 universities.

The survey report, "Food from Our Changing World: The Globalization of Food and How Americans Feel About It," noted that 74 percent of the public answered "no" to the question: "If the U.S. could buy all its food from other countries cheaper than it can be produced and sold here, should we?" Three out of four people surveyed also believe government policies should focus on helping family, owner-operated farms.

Yee has been traveling around the country talking with farm groups and university extension agents about the idea of creating a family farm brand that consumers could identify with locally-grown food.

The new brand would merely be the "face of a new system," Yee said.

According to Yee, the most challenging part will be restructuring the food chain so that producers have more control over their products up to the point of sale.

"Retailers are really dominating the system," Yee said. "The idea is to distribute the power to farmers."

Yee envisions a national association of family farmers developing a relationship with retailers in which "producers would act more collectively and become more vertically integrated."

Large retail chains would play a part in this system without dominating it, according to Yee's vision.

"Ideally, (big retailers) would have a strong role, but they wouldn't have control of the system," he said.

Yee said a good starting point would be in working with the Independent Grocer's Association, a group of surviving "mom and pop" food stores across the country.

It's not only these small stores being threatened by the snowballing force of huge retail.

In California, grocery workers from medium-sized chain stores are on strike over an increase in health insurance costs. According to Yee, the grocery chains say they have been forced to raise workers' insurance fees in order to remain competitive with Wal-Mart stores in the area.

Yee can also foresee the family farm brand taking root in restaurants, food service companies, and schools.

The biggest obstacle is finding the several million dollars Yee said the program needs to get up and running. By the end of 2004, he hopes to have a plan for raising money, pilot programs started in four or five states, and a "skeleton plan" in place for the country.

According to Yee, areas that could be ripe for pilot programs include the Mid-Atlantic region (including Pennsylvania), California, Michigan, Ohio, Vermont, and Washington state.

Yee grew up in Oklahoma and received an MBA in agribusiness from the University of California. He served as cooperative extension director in California before taking the USDA position this past March.

Originally hired by the USDA for a 10-month stint, Yee said his assignment was recently extended through the end of next year.

Yee can be contacted at (202) 720-4564 or by e-mail at lyee@csrees.usda.gov.

Township To Abandon Well — Again

there," Heft said. "That's a decision to be made in the future."

The water flow was measured at about 190 gallons per minute — less than two other wells being tested by the water authority, but better than any wells now operating in the township, according to Heft.

Drillers had first arrived on the farm May 27 and pulled out in early June, saying the water flow was less than expected.

The last week of July, Zimmerman had received a letter from the township, notifying him of its plan to try an airlift method at the test well on his dairy farm, home to the high quality 65-cow herd known as Cocalico Holsteins.

Zimmerman owns about 50 acres of cropland, plus pasture and land on which the buildings are situated. His son, Paul Jr., manages the cow herd.

The Zimmermans and their neighbors opposed drilling on the farm, which is located in a 500-acre, legally established ag security area, according to John Bell, attorney for the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau.

The airlift procedure recommended by township geologists and performed in September was meant to help avoid assessment problems caused by "cave-ins" that occurred during the drilling, according to Heft.

The 190-gallon per minute flow was better than any existing municipal well in the township, Heft said, but the "least satisfactory" of the three test wells it initiated this year.

The other two test wells are on properties not located in an ag security area.

Heft said the township needs to return to the farm to perform the "abandonment process," which includes removing casing installed in the well after drilling.

Reimbursements to Zimmerman for any damages and crop losses from the drilling, which took place near the center of the farm, will "be worked out between attorneys," Heft said.

If the well is ever put to use by the township, it would prohibit normal farming techniques on a 10-12 acre radius around the wellhead, including fertilizer applications.

Adams County Farm Wins Big

FAIRFIELD (Adams Co.) — Blue Ridge Longhorns owned by Randy and Pat Sutton of Fairfield continued their successful show year with two of their Texas Longhorns, Blue Ridge Slick Rusty, a 3-year-old, and Blue Ridge Jack Frost, a 2-year-old.

Due to their outstanding show records, both longhorns earned enough points to be invited to the International Texas Longhorn Championship Show in Louisville, Ky.

During the show, both entries from Blue Ridge Longhorns won first place in their age division. Blue Ridge Jack Frost was named grand champion junior steer with Blue Ridge Slick Rusty as the reserve champion.

In addition, Blue Ridge Slick Rusty was entered in the Call of the Horns competition. He placed second with a measurement of 78-1/4".

At the annual awards banquet held in conjunction with the championship show, both longhorn entries received their Silver Merit Award for Point Accumulation.

Furthermore, Blue Ridge Jack Frost received the high point award for the northeast region and high point 2-year-old in the nation. Blue Ridge Slick Rusty won the reserve high point award northeast region and the reserve high point 3-year-old in the nation.

Farm Bureau Announces Achievement Award Finalists

by a panel of judges on a combination of factors, including farm operation growth and financial progress, plus leadership within and outside of Farm Bureau.

The winner of the YF&R Achievement Award, to be announced Tuesday, Nov. 18, will receive a $500 cash prize from the Dodge division of DaimlerChrysler, 400 hours use of a Kubota tractor, $500 worth of crop protection products from Syngenta, and lodging and registration at the 2004 Pennsylvania Farm Bureau Leadership Conference. The winner will also travel to the American Farm Bureau convention in Honolulu, Hawaii in January to take part in national competition.

This year's finalists are Matthew and Barbara Balliet of Drums, Luzerne County; Forrest and Jessica Wessner of Germansville, Lehigh County; and Dennis Whitney of Harborside, Erie County.

Starting in 1998 with the purchase of a rundown farm in a neighboring county, Matthew Balliet single-handedly operates a 500-acre cash grain enterprise. He grows corn and soybeans, plus some hay and oats for a small herd of custom-raised beef cattle. Having no equipment when he started, over the years Balliet has purchased or customized a complete line of planters, drills, tillage equipment, and trucks. Cropping on the farm is 100 percent no-till.

He converted a potato storage building into a maintenance and equipment repair shed, and added an on-farm grain storage and dryer system. Following last year's drought, Balliet installed two center-pivot irrigation systems which can cover about one-third of the corn acreage at the home farm.

An active Farm Bureau member, Balliet has served on the Luzerne County Farm Bureau board of directors. He chairs the County Farm Bureau's State Legislative Committee and serves as its National Legislative Spokesman. He and his wife Barbara have served on Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's YF&R State Committee. Balliet also served on a county task force on farmland preservation and is now a member of the county's Agricultural Land Preservation Board. He is a dedicated member and Fire Chief of the Butler Township Fire Department.

Forrest and Jessica Wessner operate a 450-acre potato and hay farm in Lehigh County. They have undertaken many changes during the eight years they've been farming to improve the marketability of their products. Labor-saving changes have also been a major focus in an operation which involves handling 40,000 fifty-pound bags of potatoes and 30,000 bales of hay and straw.

A German-built potato harvester was purchased to improve quality of their tablestock potatoes. Their packing line was expanded and updated and an industrial-size humidifier was installed in their storage facility to maintain potato quality. A traveling irrigation system was purchased following the 1999 drought so the farm's entire potato acreage could be covered.

For their hay business, a hay drying barn was constructed to cure the hay with warm air, producing a differentiated, quality product which has proven to be popular with their horse-owner customers. A second baler was added and a large 80-foot X 40-foot building was constructed to provide quality hay storage.

Wessner is a member of the Lehigh County Farm Bureau Board of Directors and serves on its State Legislative Committee. He is also active in the Lehigh County Potato Growers Association. Jessica has served on the Lehigh County Cooperative Extension board and the county 4-H board.

Dennis Whitney operates a 120-acre grape vineyard and apple orchard on the shores of Lake Erie. A member of the National Grape Cooperative Association, Dennis grows Concord and Niagara grapes for processing into juice and jams at a nearby Welch's plant. He also grows some Catawba grapes and French hybrid varieties for area winemakers. A few acres of the farm have been converted to trellised apple trees for pick-your-own sales.

Since taking over from his father in 1993, Dennis has undertaken an extensive overhaul of the entire operation. He rejuvenated existing vineyards, planted 20 more acres of grapes on his property and leased additional acreage from other farms. He has also renovated aging equipment and buildings. A 40-foot X 60-foot structure was constructed for off-season equipment storage and to centralize harvest operations. A custom harvesting business has been established with neighboring grape farmers.

Dennis has been active in the Erie County Farm Bureau, serving as Governmental Relations

Director and membership co-chairman. He is also a member of the PFB YF&R State Committee. He has served as an alternate delegate for his grape cooperative and serves on the County Horticulture Board. He has also held leadership roles with the Boy Scouts and Civil Air Patrol.

Farmers from across the state will take part in the PFB Annual Meeting at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center, Nov. 17 - 19. Voting Delegates from 54 county Farm Bureaus will elect leaders and chart policy positions for the statewide organization for the coming year. PFB represents about 34,000 farm and rural families in 54 county organizations. It is part of the world's largest organization of farmers and ranchers, the 5.3-million member American Farm Bureau Federation.

Geneva Experiment Station Increases Its Capacity For Field Research

GENEVA, N.Y. — The New York State Agricultural Experiment Station has added the 75-acre Gates Farm to the 730 acres of available research land being used by the station for field trials. The additional land will allow the implementation of a new crop rotation schedule and insure the integrity of field trials at the station.

"It is vital that we continue our efforts to provide high-quality research facilities for our faculty and staff, thus allowing them to continue to provide the best information on fruit and vegetable crop production and protection," said Bob Seem, associate director of the experiment station.

The Gates Farm will be divided between fruit and vegetable research. Some of the fruit field space will allow the station's highly successful apple breeding program to expand under the leadership of Professor Susan Brown, while 15 acres are part of a study run by Professor George Abawi on soil health.

The farm was purchased from Rosalie Kneut in 2001, and is located on Gates Road in Geneva, NY, contiguous with the Station's Robbins and Lucey Farms. The Station's Field Research Unit, managed by Mark Scott, more than 2,000 man-hours improving the farm's infrastructure to meet the needs of station scientists. Improvements include access roads, a surface water management system, underground irrigation lines, deer fence and subsurface drainage, bringing the cost of the farm to $400,000.

Lancaster County Hires Dairy Agent

would be selected out of about 15 applicants for the position.

"He has a very strong science and teaching background," Ressler said. "Most importantly, he has a strong farm background, having grown up on a farm. He's very interested in getting back on farms (after his teaching stint in Illinois)."

Beth Grove will continue to serve as Lancaster County dairy agent for smaller farms, while Griswold will focus on larger operations.

Griswold said his first priority will be to "meet as many people as possible" to learn about the Lancaster County dairy industry.

He said he is looking forward to settling down in the area with his wife Beth (originally from Philadelphia), and daughter Julie, 10 months.

In most cases, catalog prices are wholesale and Jim collects only a nominal delivery charge, according to Cornell, which is 10 percent of purchase with a $3 minimum. This keeps products affordable and allows the small farmer a decent return. And with the added convenience of home delivery, customers are finding direct buying not only easier but hard to resist!

The money that is exchanged stays local. That in itself is empowering for everyone concerned. But what is even more empowering is that Small Street Co-op customers know they are supporting local farms directly, while participating farmers and suppliers continue to watch their sales volume grow.

For Jim, there's great satisfaction not only in watching Small Street Co-op grow, but in knowing that others are looking to his business as a model for other communities. It's a win-win situation for everyone concerned.

are not brought into a feed lot and fed with grain in order to put on weight and fat before being sold. Fed cattle are sold at weights between 1,100 to 1,200 pounds and have more meat and fat, or what is called marbling. The marbling in the meat is generally what gives meat most of its flavor when cooked and its designation as a USDA choice cut.

Consequently, choice cuts of meat are likely to be in less supply and more expensive for the next several months since most meat will be leaner because of more lighter steers being sold to meat markets. Boxed cuts of meat have gone up from $1.60 per pound to $2 per pound during the end of October, just over a 30 percent increase over last year.

Beef is price sensitive and consumers are likely to back off of buying higher priced beef, thus putting downward pressure on beef prices. Less people are expected to buy beef and shift to other types of meat such as pork, lamb, or poultry. This means less demand for beef during a tight supply period. However, during the next three months, consumers can expect as much as a 40 percent increase in the retail price on many cuts of beef, especially choice cuts.

Since beef is competitive at the retail level, many retailers will attempt or be forced into absorbing some of these increased production costs and are likely to be less profitable in order to keep their customers.

Because steers have been sold at lighter weights, we also expect an overall reduction in beef production both in terms of weight as well as the number of cattle to be sold over the next three to six months. Locally, many cattlemen are reported to be either selling off their herds in order to retire or to cash in now in hopes of buying back in at lower prices in the next few years.

During the end of October, beef production fell 17 percent below the comparable level a year ago. Beef production is expected to remain substantially down through the end of 2003, and prices are forecasted to range from 85 cents to 95 cents a pound for live weight.

USDA Awards Grants For Initiatives

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA recently awarded more than $14 million in grants to 26 colleges and universities in the U.S. and its territories under the National Integrated Food Safety Initiative (NIFSI) for the Fiscal year 2003.

"These projects address a broad spectrum of food safety concerns — from on-farm production, post-harvest processing and distribution, to food selection, preparation, and consumption," said Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman.

Each year NIFSI awards these funds to faculty at land-grant and non-land colleges and universities to ensure that valuable research, education and extension knowledge is transferred to teachers, scientists, health professionals, researchers, farmers, food processors, foodservice workers, consumers, and all others making crucial decisions about the safety of the U.S. food supply.

An average of $400,000 was awarded to each university to support 3-year food safety projects that used an integrated approach to solving problems in applied research, education, and extension.

Grants to Northeast/Mid-Atlantic area universities follow:

MASSACHUSETTS: Food Safety Training and Certification for Under-Educated, Limited English Proficient School Food Service Personnel — $500,000 to the University of Massachusetts.

NEW JERSEY: Food Handling and Consumption Knowledge, Attitudes, and Behaviors of Young Adults and the Impact of a Food Safety Social Marketing Campaign — $500,000 to Rutgers University.

NEW YORK: Global Good Agricultural Practices Conference to Explore the Impact of Current Research and Extension Programs — $50,000 to Cornell University. L. Monocytogenes in Food Processing Plants: Development and Implementation of Science-Based Environmental Testing and Control Strategies — $500,000 to Cornell University.

NORTH CAROLINA: Fresh Produce Food Safety Training Program and Curriculum Development for the Southeast — $500,000 to North Carolina State University. Tracking the Source of Enteric Pathogens in Surface Waters — $450,000 to North Carolina State University.

OLINA STATE UNIVERSITY: Chinese-language Food Safety Training Program for Foodservice Workers — $445,000 to North Carolina State University.

OHIO: Safety of Foods Processed by Four Alternatives Processing Technologies — $405,000 to Ohio State University.

PENNSYLVANIA: Multiple Strategies for Control of Patulin in Apples and Apple Products - An Integrated Regional Research and Extension Project — $500,000 to Pennsylvania State University.

RHODE ISLAND: Garden to Table: Food Safety Practices of Home Gardeners — $384,000 to the University of Rhode Island.

TENNESSEE: Assessing Risk and Communicating Food Irradiation Benefits to High Risk Consumers — $89,958 to Tennessee State University. A Multi-Faceted Approach to Improve Food Safety for Child Care Providers — $430,000 to the University of Tennessee.

VERMONT: An Interactive Online Food Safety Education Program for Middle School Children — $500,000 to the University of Vermont.

USDA Issues Proposal To Allow Animal Imports From Canada

WASHINGTON, D.C. — USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service issued a proposed rule Oct. 31 to amend its bovine spongiform encephalopathy (BSE) regulations to establish a new category of regions that recognizes those that present a minimal risk of introducing BSE into the United States via the importation of certain low-risk live ruminants and ruminant products.

This proposed rule would place Canada on a list of countries considered a minimal risk for BSE, thus it would be eligible to export certain live ruminant and ruminant products.

The proposed minimal risk region would include regions in which an animal has been diagnosed with BSE but in which specific preventive measures have been in place for an appropriate period of time that reduce the risk of BSE being introduced to the United States.

Based on a comprehensive risk analysis and review, USDA offers that the surveillance, prevention and control measures implemented by Canada are sufficient to be included in the minimal risk category.

The proposed rule was scheduled for publication in the Nov. 4 Federal Register. After a 60-day comment period, USDA will consider the comments as it makes any final decisions on the importation of certain live ruminants and ruminant products from Canada and other minimal risk regions for BSE.

Consideration will be given to comments received on or before Jan. 5, 2004. Comments may be submitted by postal mail, commercial delivery or by e-mail. Send an original and three copies of postal or commercial delivery comments to Docket No. 03-080-1, Regulatory Analysis and Development, PPD, APHIS, Station 3C71, 4700 River Road Unit 118, Riverdale, Md. 20737-1238.

APHIS documents published in the Federal Register and related information, including the names of organizations and individuals who have commented on APHIS dockets, are available on the Internet at <http://www.aphis.usda.gov/>.

COOL Funding

WASHINGTON, D.C. — National Farmers Union has joined 135 agriculture and consumer groups today in asking Congress to maintain full funding for the implementation of country-of-origin labeling (COOL).

"Agriculture producers and consumers remain united and steadfast in the call to keep mandatory country-of-origin labeling," said NFU President Dave Frederickson. "Mandatory COOL provides an opportunity for the United States to expand the level of consumer choice, confidence and knowledge in the retail marketplace, which consumers deserve and demand and American producers can provide."

Individuals, Families Lauded By Conservation District

HEBRON (Lebanon Co.) — The Lebanon County Conservation District recognized four individuals and two families for their outstanding efforts of conservation in Lebanon County at their annual planning meeting and awards banquet held Wednesday at the Hebron Fire Hall, Hebron.

Special guests, volunteers, and award winners were invited to celebrate in the conservation district's 54 years of accomplishments.

During the banquet, special recognition was awarded to a conservation farmer, a conservation volunteer, a conservation educator, conservation steward families from Bethel and Millcreek townships, and a long time conservation district employee.

Jeffrey Werner is recognized for his efforts in soil and water conservation on the 356 acres he farms from his home in Swatara Township. He was awarded The Chesapeake Bay Clean Water Farm Award. Jeff first became cooperator with the Lebanon County Conservation District in 1965 with his father and has continued the family tradition of conservation farming. Jeff maintains a flock of 33,000 turkeys and grows corn, soybeans, and wheat. He reduces soil erosion from this farmland by implementing a conservation district approved soil and water conservation plan involving cover cropping, minimum tillage and no-till farming, contour strip-cropping, and crop rotation. Jeff is also conscientious of reducing nutrient runoff from his fields and voluntarily implements an Act 6 nutrient management plan.

Frederick T. Heilman of Lebanon is the 2003 Lebanon County Conservationist of the Year for at least a quarter century of conservation volunteerism. A native of Lebanon, Heilman has worked behind the scenes to deepen the understanding of the varied natural resources of Lebanon County.

An active member of the Quitapahilla Audubon Society since at least 1982, "Fritz," as he is referenced by friends, has served the organization in almost every capacity, including president, vice president, board of directors, newsletter editor, and program and field trip chairman. More importantly, he has served as a devoted teacher of nature to others while serving in all these capacities. Over the years Heilman has served as a coordinator in Audubon's Christmas Bird Count and spring Birdathon where the most scientifically vital and up-to-date bird population, migration, health and nesting records for Lebanon County are obtained. These programs have reached thousands of Lebanon County school children and adults. Quitapahilla's own scholarship program to send children and adults to ecology camp has been a financial benefactor of Fritz's generosity.

Initiatives at the Stoevers Dam Nature Barn have benefited from his tireless efforts including, event coordination and participation, display development, and educational offerings including astronomy programs to name a few. Additionally, Fritz has served on the steering committee that planned and developed the Memorial Arboretum at Stoevers Dam. Heilman served on the City of Lebanon Shade Tree Commission to help his community promote the importance of a healthy urban forest and has planted his urban property in a manner conducive to environmental stewardship as an example for his neighbors.

Fritz has been instrumental in promoting environmental stewardship at his place of employment, Bayer Corporation. As a member of Bayer's Earth Day Committee he has promoted tree planting through the Lebanon Conservation District's annual sale, helped institute a bluebird trail and provides for its monitoring, and coordinated their Adopt-a-highway program.

Dawn R. Connelly, a fourth grade teacher at Southeast Elementary School in the Lebanon School District was awarded the District's Conservation Educator of the Year award. A resident of Lebanon, Dawn serves as the Elementary Science Coordinator for the school district. Projects often involve the entire student body and parent volunteers. For instance, Campbell's Soups labels have been collected and recycled for over 9 years while the Ronald McDonald House in Hershey has benefited from student recycling of beverage tabs. Come Earth Day, students in grades 1 through 5 are on the school grounds and surrounding neighborhood collecting litter. These initiatives are ongoing with the fourth grade and student council. As a student council advisor Dawn has helped students beautify the school yard. Dawn has helped enact an environmental day each year for the past 5 years for third through fifth graders to encourage environmental awareness. During this day the students do a stream study, a forestry station, a clean-up station and many learning activities. Over 300 students have benefited from this experience.

Connelly has been an active participant with a committee of multiple partners to help develop the wetlands at the Lebanon County Career and Technology Center as an outdoor classroom for all of Lebanon County's students. She has incorporated wetlands into her curriculum and takes students on site visits to the wetlands for environmental studies.

Southeast Elementary School as well as the Middle and High Schools participate annually in the Lebanon County Conservation District's three envirothons. Connelly is the coordinator for the entire School District for this event. According to Connelly, "It is very rewarding to see how involved these students and the parents become in the topic each year."

The Manbeck Family, represented by Barbara Bauer, Alletta Schadler, Eve Manbeck and Andrew Whitehill of Fredericksburg have been chosen to receive the Conservation Landowner of the Year award. The Manbecks own and manage 301 acres of forest and farmland in Bethel Township. The property, known at one time as Camp Carson, is approximately 50% farmed while 50% is managed forestland. Since 1977, the Manbecks have taken an active role in managing their land and were recently designated as forest stewards by Bureau of Forestry, Department of Conservation and Natural Resources (DCNR). The Manbecks began implementing a 10-year forestry stewardship plan 7 years ago that has included cutting firewood, plantings such as red oak and windrow shrubs using tree shelters to increase survival, brush pile building and planting for wildlife, control of invasive species, bird house installation and grape vine control. Gravel has been used to dress roads and a pond spillway has been stabilized. Farmland is managed through a combination of nutrient management, strip farming, diversion and subsurface tile drainage that helps protect soil and water resources from the forces of erosion. Properly managed timber harvesting allows income from the resource while improving habitat to encourage wildlife diversity.

The first annual Lebanon County Business Steward of the Year Award was presented to Arrowhead Springs which is operated by the Ludwig Family of Newmanstown and represented by Michael, Tamara, Edward, and Darlene Ludwig. Arrowhead Springs is part of a family business occupying 430 acres of which 330 acres are woodland with the balance maintained in grass fields, raceways, and ponds. For decades, it has been one of the premier recreational free-fishing facilities in the northeastern United States. The Ludwigs are under contract with Suntory Water Group, which is bottled under the local label of Crystal Springs. The majority of Crystal Springs bottled spring water products come from Arrowhead Springs. A testimonial to the quality of the water and why the Ludwigs make the conservation ethic the core of maintaining and managing their land.

The Ludwigs have always been concerned with protecting their watershed, managing their timber and maintaining favorable cover for wildlife. To further these goals, they established in 1994 a Forest Stewardship Plan on approximately 260 acres of woodland. The goal is to protect the water quality, enhance wildlife habitat and at the same time provide a place for recreational enjoyment. The stewardship plan has helped the Ludwigs open the lines of communication with their neighbors. A small hunting club has started and a deer management plan is being implemented. Without the stewardship plan they never would have seen the positive results they have seen. The Pennsylvania Game Commission assisted their Quality

Deer Management Association (QMDA) in forming a local co-op for those neighbors who wanted to make a difference in the community by improving game opportunities. Most important to the Ludwigs is the benefit everyone receives from a properly managed watershed/woodland area.

Leigh Beamesderfer of Stouchsburg is the 2003 Lebanon County Special Recognition Award winner. Beamesderfer has been a dedicated member of the Lebanon County Conservation District staff since 1985. As Forester/Naturalist for the conservation district she has formulated a comprehensive menu of environmental education programs available to citizens stretching beyond the borders of our county. Leigh has also been critical to community and state forestry initiatives.

Mortality Composting/Natural Rendering Workshop Set

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension has announced the next mortality composting/natural rendering workshop.

The workshop will take place Wednesday, Nov. 19 at the Ag Progress Days site, Rockspring.

The concerns of animal mortality and biosecurity continue to be a factor in Pennsylvania animal agriculture. This continuing program will prepare producers to address these issues.

Those who should attend include Penn State Extension educators, Pennsylvania agency and agribusiness personnel, and Pennsylvania dairy and livestock farmers.

The workshop will continue the discussion on mortality composting. Participants will view and explore an active mortality composting pile and begin discussion on the emergency biosecurity response to a disease outbreak with composting. Somerset County Club Calf Sale Produces Champions

SANDRA LEPLEY
Somerset Co. Correspondent
SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — The Somerset County Club Calf Sale, completing its 21st year, has some justifiable bragging rights.

It is Pennsylvania's largest club calf sale according to organizers. Last year's sale alone resulted in several grand champions at county fairs and festivals this past year.

This year's sale, in conjunction with a morning show, was conducted Saturday, Oct. 11, at the Somerset County Fairgrounds in Meyersdale.

There were 67 steers and 20 heifers that hit the auction block for a grand total sale of $98,575.

"This sale benefits the 4-H kids because they don't need to drive around and look for top-quality cows," said Dave Brant, chairman of the sale and a member of the Somerset County Beef Producers. "These animals are all broke to lead, wormed, vaccinated, and started on feed. The steers are ready for next year's fair."

According to Brant, some of last year's club calves ended up being grand champion at the Somerset County Fair, grand champion at the Garrett County (Maryland) Fair, grand champion and reserve champion at the Buckwheat Festival in Kingwood, W.Va., grand champion at the Westmoreland County Fair, and reserve champion at the Cambria County Fair.

The 21st annual event began in the morning with a show judged by Terry Muir from Lima, Ohio. The show and sale is sponsored by the Somerset County Beef Producers and the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association.

A father-son team near Wellersburg who uses donor cows and embryo transplantation in their operation won grand champion steer during the morning show. Dave and Chris Kornes had several animals at the sale. Their grand champion Maine Anjou

A father-son team won grand champion steer and county bred champion during the 21st annual Club Calf Show and Sale on Saturday, Oct. 11, at the Somerset County Fairgrounds in Meyersdale. K&K Cattle Co., owned by Dave and Chris Kornes, Wellersburg, are pictured in back, with Dan Miller, left of Meyersdale, who showed the animal during the morning show. The Maine Anjou Simmental Angus crossbred steer, born this spring, was sold for $5,000. The total sale of 67 steers and 20 heifers came in at $98,575.

Jeff and Jerry Hull of Camden, W.Va., won reserve champion steer during the Club Calf Show and Sale, conducted on Saturday at the Somerset County Fairgrounds in Meyersdale. This animal sold for $2,400.

Simmental Angus crossbred went for $5,000 to an undisclosed buyer during the evening sale. John Spiker of Jane Lew, W.Va., was auctioneer.

The Kornes also had another steer that won county bred reserve champion during the show. That Maine Anjou Charolais Angus crossbred steer went for $2,400 during the evening sale.

Jeff Hull of Camden, W.Va., aided by his father Jerry, won reserve champion steer, a Maine Anjou Simmental Angus crossbred animal that went for $2,400.

In the heifer division, the Kornes also won grand champion and county bred heifer. Jeff Hull of West Virginia won reserve champion heifer. Sunset Farms (Richard Sines) of Meyersdale won reserve county bred heifer.

Overall, the average sale price for each steer was $1,186.19 and for each heifer was $955, according to Brant. Even though there have been years when the total sale amount has been higher, the average for each animal sold at $1,033.04 was the highest in 21 years, explained Brant.

Originally, there were more than 100 animals slated for the sale bill, but some consignors from West Virginia canceled because of Hurricane Isabel that hit a few weeks ago. However, there were 23 breeders represented from throughout Pennsylvania, Maryland, and West Virginia.

"We had more steers slated for the sale, but Hurricane Isabel caused some of our consignors to change plans," said Brant. "Some of the breeders from West Virginia experienced severe rainfall from the hurricane a few weeks ago, and some even lost cattle and had damage to their properties. However, the sale all in all was one of our best."

KILE's Inaugural National Hereford Show A Success

CHARLENE M. SHUPP

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Large Arena of the Farm Show Complex was abuzz with activity as the first-ever National Hereford Show took place at the 2003 Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE).

With more than 150 entries crossing the tanbark in hopes of a win, Judge Howard Fehlman commended the exhibitors on the quality for this first-year show.

Bringing a National Hereford Show to Harrisburg took three years of planning. But as the inaugural show demonstrated, it was well worth the work.

"I'm pretty impressed with the quality of cattle here," said Fehlman as he reviewed his class winners during his selection of the champion of the heifer show. In his decision process he stressed that he selected cows that he would use at home.

Fehlman named Tad Francis of Brooklyn, Conn. with his winning entry, MCC Lexus 210, as grand champion. To round out the pair was Four-L Goldilocks 201, exhibited by Four L Hereford Farm of Murfreesboro, Tenn.

For the bull show, Fehlman complemented this first-time national Hereford bull show for being "pretty impressive" and expressed an appreciation for the exhibitors.

"People went to a lot of time, trouble, and expense to bring these animals out here for this first-time show," said Fehlman.

To lead off the bull show championship, Fehlman named CS Bomber 6L, owned by Stockdale Farms of Dayton, as the grand champion. The reserve grand champion bull banner was given to Four-L Golden Eye 163, exhibited by Four-L Hereford Farm.

In his closing remarks for the show, Fehlman stressed that although breeders were exhibiting to promote their own herds, shows like this help to promote the breed as a whole.

National Polled Hereford Queen, Margeaux Firestine of Womelsdorf, was also on hand to assist in the crowning of the grand and reserve champions of the show. Firestine has traveled across the U.S. representing the Hereford breed, with Harrisburg being only one stop in her very busy schedule this year.

For Farm Show staff, the Hereford Show and KILE were successful. "KILE went well for us," said Larry Weaver, show manager administrator. "(The National Show) increased the number of Herefords here. I thought the show went well and the exhibitors were really pleased."

KILE numbers for the Hereford Show were 116 heifers and 44 bulls.

Thoroughbred Charities Of America Awards Grant To Equine Center

LEESBURG, Va. — The Marion duPont Scott Equine Medical Center has been awarded a $25,000 grant from Thoroughbred Charities of America. Grant funds are designated for building research facilities to enable collaborative research efforts to benefit equine health. The Equine Medical Center, located in Leesburg, Virginia, is one of three campuses comprising the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine, a two-state professional school with major campus facilities at Virginia Tech in Blacksburg and the University of Maryland at College Park.

Research facilities to be constructed on the Leesburg campus will facilitate greater collaboration among faculty and graduate students at the Equine Medical Center, the VMRCVM's College Park campus in Maryland, and Virginia Tech's Middleburg Agricultural Research and Extension Center. The laboratory's Northern Virginia location will also facilitate collaboration with other private and public research groups to promote the health and well being of horses in the Mid-Atlantic region and beyond.

"Virginia Tech President, Charles Steger, has a vision for the university to be placed among the top 30 research institutions in the country by 2010," said Dr. Nathaniel A. White II, Interim Director of the Equine Medical Center. "The Equine Medical Center's faculty, along with faculty at the Blacksburg campus, Maryland campus and the MARE Center will be a part of the effort to achieve President Steger's vision. Through collaboration with other research units, we look forward to creating new knowledge about equine health to benefit horses everywhere. We are grateful to Thoroughbred Charities of America and its board members for their continued support of our efforts. With this grant and others we have received, TCA will be largely responsible for construction and equipping our research facilities at our Leesburg campus."

Schuylkill County Conducts 4-H, FFA Livestock Sale

SUMMIT STATION (Schuylkill Co.) — On July 31, representatives from dozens of local businesses converged on the Schuylkill County Fairgrounds in Summit Station to offer their support to 82 members of the Schuylkill County 4-H Program and the Tri-Valley FFA Chapter. Participating youth sold 130 animals and received more than $77,000 total for their efforts.

The Schuylkill County 4-H and FFA Livestock Sale took place during the Schuylkill County Fair.

Longtime buyer Chester Snyder, or Charles S. Snyder Inc., was honored for his outstanding contributions to young livestock exhibitors. Schuylkill County Agriculture Agent Dwane L. Miller presented Snyder and his wife, Jean, with a plaque prior to the start of the sale. "I thought about calling up all the kids who have ever had an animal bought by Snyder," Miller said, "but there's no way they would all fit in the sale ring!"

At the 2003 sale, Snyder once again provided his traditional support, purchasing eight market animals for a grand total of $4,386.23. He joined a host of other buyers in supporting local youth at the sale.

State 4-H Dairy Judging Team Completes Season

MONTROSE (Susquehanna Co.) — The Pennsylvania State 4-H Dairy Judging Team, Beth Giangrieco and Abigail Onyon, Susquehanna County; Justin Hall, York County; and Aaron Hoover, Lebanon County, completed their 2003 judging season at the National 4-H Dairy Judging contest held in Madison, Wis., in conjunction with World Dairy Expo.

Of the 32 teams and 120 individuals from across the United States in the 4-H competition, the Pennsylvania team placed sixth overall and fifth in reasons. Other team highlights included top ten finishes in the Brown Swiss, Holstein and Jersey breeds. On an individual basis, Giangrieco was named an All American dairy judge by placing fifth overall.

On Sept. 22 the Pennsylvania team competed in Harrisburg, at the All-American Invitational 4-H Dairy Judging Competition. Fourteen teams from various states judged 10 classes of dairy cows and gave four sets of oral reasons.

In the Harrisburg contest, the team placed second overall — missing first by only two points — and placed first in oral reasons. Sealing their second place finish included placing first in both the Holstein and Ayrshire breeds and the team placed fifth in the Brown Swiss and Jersey breeds. Individual placings included Giangrieco placing third overall, Onyon placing fourth overall, Hoover placing fifth overall and Hall placing fifth in the Holstein breed.

At the national event, the team saw cattle that are known world wide, gazed out the windows at the Sears Tower, Chicago, Ill., and did some sightseeing at Nasco International headquarters, the National Dairy Shrine museum, and the Hoard's Dairyman printing press and Guernsey farm, all in Fort Atkinson, Wis.

Seem Named Interim Director Of Station

GENEVA, N.Y. — Robert C. Seem, Cornell University professor of plant pathology, has been named interim director of the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station, effective Jan. 1, 2004.

Seem has served as the station's associate director since 1990. James E. Hunter, who has served as the director of the station for 13.5 years, had previously announced his plans to resign as director. Hunter will investigate the diversity of interactions between academe and industry beginning Jan. 1.

Hunter said that he has every confidence in Bob Seem because "there's nothing at the station about which Bob is not well informed."

"Bob's dedicated service for 13 years as associate director has prepared him well for this role," said Susan A. Henry, The Ronald P. Lynch Dean of Agriculture and Life Sciences. "I am confident that he will be able to provide the necessary leadership and continuity to ensure a seamless transition to the new administration."

"At this time, I expect to maintain all ongoing programs and not undertake any major initiatives," said Seem. Current programs include the implementation of a new administrative service center as part of the university-wide Workforce Planning Initiative, ongoing budget planning, work with the Ag & Food Tech Park, and continuing development of a new Vineyard Laboratory in Fredonia.

Seem is a native of the Allentown area in eastern Pennsylvania, and a graduate of Penn State, where he received a bachelor's degree in botany, and a master's and doctorate degree in plant pathology. He joined the department of plant pathology at Cornell as an assistant professor of plant pathology in 1975, and was promoted to full professor in 1998. Seem specializes in the epidemiology, biology, and control of fruit and vegetable diseases with emphasis on the development of decision support systems ranging from simple models of disease to sophisticated simulation models.

Werley Wins Women In Ag Award At Farm-City Banquet

CHARLENE M. SHUPP
ESPENSHADE
Lancaster Farming Staff

READING (Berks Co.) — Thursday night at the Reading Sheraton was one of surprise for Donna Werley of Hamburg as she was named the 2003 Women in Agriculture Award winner at the 20th annual Berks County Farm-City Banquet.

With her husband Phil and children Angie, Melissa, Pam and Matt by her side, she had no idea of her selection until her name was read.

"I'm very surprised," said Werley upon receiving her award.

But this dedicated volunteer says her work is worth her time. "Everything I do, I do it for the kids. It's great to see the kids come into 4-H at 8 and leave at 18 and see how they have changed."

Werley also believes that by giving of her time, her rewards are greater as she sees how the kids she works with grow and mature.

Werley's work with the dairy industry is a lifelong one, starting with her family's dairy farm where they raise 120 cows on their 150-acre farm.

Off the farm, she is a Sunday school teacher, 4-H leader, and a dairy bowl coach. She has lead dairy bowl teams to several regional and state awards and one national championship.

Werley is also the special events coordinator for the Berks County Dairy Princess Committee and the southeast coordinator and secretary for the Pennsylvania

Princess and Promotion Services.

Werley is the eighth recipient of this award.

To further the Berks County farm city message, Floyd Huber, a hog producer and Charles Adams, a radio personality from WEEU, took on the challenge of a job swap.

Each presented a slide presentation on their experiences, expressing their appreciation for the difficulties of the other's line of work.

To summarize his experience on a farm, Adams said, "One thing that I was impressed with was when I came out (to the farm). I looked around and I saw... a cement plant in the distance... the Blue Mountains... the skyline of Kutztown... some suburban homes... a battery plant. And somehow they all seem to get along and I was impressed with that." Adams concluded his remarks, appreciating the insight his day on a farm gave him.

For Huber, his morning on the radio included interviews with Adams, commercial tapings, seeing how computers were used to keep things going, and giving the weather.

The Berks County Farm City Council concluded the evening with the presentation of the Public Relations in Agriculture awards. They were presented to five FFA chapters in Berks County. The chapters recognized were Conrad Weiser, Kutztown, Oley Valley, Tulpehocken, and Twin Valley.

The 2003 Women in Agriculture Award winner, Donna Werley, center, is surrounded by her family, Melissa Johnson; Matt Werley; Phil Werley; Pam Werley, Pennsylvania Alternate Dairy Princess; and Angie Davis.

Charles Adams and Floyd Huber took part in the 2003 job exchange.

Lancaster County Weekly Cattle

New Holland, Pa.
Report Supplied By USDA
Friday, Nov. 7, 2003

	CATTLE	CALVES
THIS WEEK	2567	1853
LAST WEEK	2871	2027

This week in Lancaster County, slaughter steers kicked off the week trading mostly steady to firm. However, by Thursday the finished market took another noticeable swing as prices were a full 3.00-5.00 higher in New Holland on Thursday. The direct feedlots in Nebraska moved their black-hided steers 1.00-4.00 higher, from 105.00-106.00 this week. Their dressed sales were 5.00 higher, from 165.00-167.00. However, cutout values have not been overly affected by the higher finished trade, as Choice cuts have been around 169.00. The Merc took note though, as it will take a few days of limit-up gains to align the spot November contract (currently at 99.90) with the current cash trade. Back in the County, the number of finished cattle is remaining light. Finished, there is a word that is being used more and more loosely. It used to be local producers would hold cattle until they weighed from 1350-1450 lbs., they were high Choice and Prime, with a Yield Grade of 3 or 4. Now, they are coming through the sale ring weighing much less, most are average to low Choice, some are Select, with Yield Grades moving down to 1 to 3. Although, who could blame producers for putting them on a truck when they are selling them at a live price that they were getting for them dressed over the past years. That's not to say that there are not some reputation feeders that are holding them until they are ready, however, most kosher buyers would pay a pretty penny for a map to these producers farms. Holstein steers were in light supply this week, and were never trended. Slaughter heifers sold mostly 2.00-4.00 higher late in the week. Slaughter cows sold fully 1.00-3.00 lower early in the week, with late week prices feeding off of the higher steer market, with bids 2.00-3.00 higher. Slaughter bulls sold steady to 1.00 lower early in the week, trending steady to 2.00 higher late in the week. The cattle supply this week in Lancaster County included 601 slaughter steers, 127 slaughter heifers, 1159 slaughter cows, 201 slaughter bulls, and 479 head of feeder cattle.

Slaughter Steers High Choice and Prime 2-4 1175-1455 lbs 108.00-115.00, mostly 110.00-112.00; early in the week 104.00-109.00. Choice 2-3 1025-1495 lbs 102.00-107.75, mostly 105.00-106.00, fancier 108.00-110.75, few full 100.00-103.00; early in the week 100.00-104.50. High yielding Choice 1-2 1200-1490 lbs 105.00-111.50 includes Charolais-crosses, mostly 107.00-109.00, early in the week 104.75-110.00. High Select and low Choice 2-3 1015-1405 lbs 99.50-104.00, mostly 102.00-103.00, high dressing 103.50-107.50; early in the week 96.00-100.50. Select 1-2 1050-1455 lbs 93.00-100.00, mostly 95.00-97.00; early in the week 90.00-96.75.

Holstein Steers: Choice 2-3 1175-1595 lbs 90.75-93.00, indiv 95.00. High Select and low Choice 2-3 1335-1580 lbs 84.00-87.50. Select 1-2 1250-1580 lbs 80.00-81.00. Standard 1-2 1180-1470 lbs 68.00-72.50, poorer quality 56.50-62.00.

Featured Recipe

Scones originated in Scotland and have been an integral part of the British lifestyle for hundreds of years.

Lightly sweet and crumbly, scones were enjoyed most notably at high tea.

Today, scones come in all flavors and can be served for breakfast, brunch, supper, or snack time.

Sweeter than biscuits, more delicate than bread, and healthier than cake, scones compliment tea, coffee, cheese, soup, stews, and more.

Sharon Garber, Elizabethtown, sent in a wonderful collection of recipes for scones. She writes, "I enjoy making and serving scones. Scones are so versatile. Most of the ingredients are basic ones that I have on hand. Also, fruits and nuts can be changed to suit one's taste. The sizes can be made smaller or larger according to your likes."

Sometimes, lemon curd or other toppings are served with scones. Here is Sharon's recipe for the traditional raisin scone and lemon curd.

RAISIN SCONES

- 2 cups flour
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon baking soda
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg
- ½ cup cold butter
- 1 cup raisins
- ¾ cup buttermilk
- 1 egg white
- Additional sugar

In a bowl, combine dry ingredients. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Stir in raisins and buttermilk just until moistened.

Turn onto floured surface; knead gently 6-8 times. Divide in half; shape each into a ball. Flatten each ball into a 6-inch circle; cut each circle into 8 wedges. Place 1-inch apart on greasing baking sheet.

Beat egg white until foamy; brush over scones. Sprinkle with sugar. Bake at 425 degrees for 12-15 minutes or until golden brown. Makes 16 scones. Serve with Lemon Curd and Devonshire cream.

LEMON CURD

- 2-3 lemons
- ¼ cup butter
- ¾ cup sugar
- 2 eggs

Grate lemon to remove zest. Squeeze lemons to make ½ cup lemon juice. Combine juice and zest with the butter and sugar in a 4 cup microwave container. Microwave uncovered for 1½-2 minutes. Beat eggs and add to mixture. Microwave at 50 percent power for 1-2 minutes uncovered. Stir every 30 seconds till thick. Makes 1½ cups. Lemon curd can be refrigerated for 2 weeks or frozen for later use.

On Being a Farm Wife

(and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

A puzzled look crossed the face of our favorite two-year-old.

"Grandma, what's 'dat'?"

Sara's dainty finger pointed toward the deep-grape-purple fabric, sporting a giant white flower, tied over my jeans and tee shirt.

"That's called an 'apron,' sweetie, I explained. 'It keeps you from getting your clothes all messy while you're cooking, if you wear one.'"

Use of an apron in our kitchen is not an everyday occurrence. To see grandma wearing this strange item of clothing (and in a color I rarely wear) was understandably puzzling to the kids.

A variety of aprons reside here, most of them gifts like the Mardi-Gras-purple model received from Louisiana friends. And, while I once only ever reached for an apron while baking pies, or during a holiday cooking marathon, aprons are winning new popularity with me.

That's primarily because I'm a "klutz." A cook inevitably finger-painted with traces of the menu. A barn chores cleaner-upper who exits the milk house damp from neck to knees. A gardener who slathers ground on her jeans while repotting plants or sowing seeds.

Aprons aren't just for cooking, I've discovered over the years.

But then, our grandmothers had figured that out eons ago.

In grandma's era, little kids weren't puzzled by aprons. They grew up seeing these cotton household garments worn and used on a daily basis. Folks didn't own closets full of clothes — or based on our old house — even have closets, so an apron kept one's everyday dress clean for several days of wearing. And a clean, probably newer, apron protected the good Sunday dress from spills and stains while entertaining dinner company.

The ubiquitous feedbag fabrics of yesterday, packaging material for chicken and cow rations before being recycled into wearing apparel, surely must have been used for countless homemade aprons. Its soft, worn absorbency would lend itself perfectly to a myriad of apron uses, from polishing a prized piece of family china to wiping off the sticky face of a toddler.

Aprons were also for gathering things: eggs as you swept through the chicken house, a couple of potatoes to be sliced up and fried for supper, apples carted in from the backyard tree. Their large pockets were convenient for stashing a paring knife, a couple of clothespins from the washline, perhaps a dainty, lace-edged cloth handkerchief.

Today's aprons are often symbolic of a skilled craftsman or artist, finding favor with folks whose talents range from blacksmiths to basketmakers. They're made of more sturdy, durable fabrics than the aprons of grandma's time, and often sport some logo or quirky saying, such as the ones popular for backyard-barbecue chefs.

Curriculum Workshop Planned For Teachers

SPRINGFIELD (Delaware Co.) — Whether you are looking for new materials to integrate into the classroom or trying to fulfill Act 48 credit hours, Penn State's "Curriculum Caravan Workshop" fulfills many teachers' needs.

The workshop will be conducted on Nov. 20 at Penn State University, Delaware County. This 4-H School Enrichment program includes projects that target elementary and middle school-aged youth, and provides lessons across different disciplines.

So, now I find myself grabbing an apron for times other than cooking. A bright-green one sporting a 4-H logo has proven to be a useful cover-up for washing milkers, keeping me from shivering in damp clothes on chilly mornings. A red calico one I fashioned years ago from a scrap piece of material, or a country-themed one sewn by a friend, are my choices for heavy-duty baking and canning. For gardening use, a durable beige canvas model — with pockets for tools — works great.

The bright, grape-purple design is just fun for surprising the grandkids.

And it adds a sporty touch over worn jeans.

"A variety of experiential activities are available to meet classroom needs," said Joyce Morrison, 4-H agent in Delaware County. "The topics include Embryology (science and agriculture); Financial Champions (mathematics and money management); Meet the Plants (environment and ecology); and Foods and Nutrition. Participants will elect two of the four curricula to explore."

The workshop is for elementary and middle school teachers, curriculum directors and committees, science coordinators, guidance counselors, principals, home school associates, parents and professionals interested in new experiential curricula. It is approved for Act 48 credit hours.

Participants will select two of the four project sessions offered in the workshop they attend. Each session includes hands-on activities and suggestions for integrating learning experiences with existing curricula. A $25 registration fee covers all workshop activities as well as a meal.

For more information, download a brochure from <http://pa4h.cas.psu.edu> — click on Curriculum Caravan Registration or contact Joyce Morrison by phone at (610) 690-2655 or by e-mail at jem28@psu.edu.

Game Meat Safety

Although the hunting process is viewed as a sport, it has a definite impact on the state's economy as well as the individual home owners' food budget. With hunting season upon us it is wise to take a few moments to look at how you handle game meats. The proper field dressing, handling and processing of game meats, whether it is small game birds, small animals or deer is essential to serving safe food.

Those who handle wild game may be unaware of the potential risks involved in contaminating the meat with food borne pathogens while handling, dressing and transporting it. Bacteria, as Salmonella and Escherichia coli O157:H7, live in the intestinal tracts of wild game.

These bacteria can cause illnesses in humans when consumed. Improper temperature control, preservation practices (canning, dehydration), cooking and handling may lead to bacterial growth and food borne outbreaks in these meats.

Bacteria grow rapidly in the temperature danger zone between 40 degrees F and 140 degrees F. Temperatures below 40 degrees F will slow the growth of bacteria. After properly field dressing the animal, it is important to chill the carcass as rapidly as possible. Insert ice packs, milk jugs full of ice, or plastic bags filled with snow into the body cavity and tie the cavity shut with string. If the raw meat is not handled properly, toxins may develop. Cooking does not destroy those toxins that are heat resistant. Therefore, meat not handled properly in the raw state may not be safe to eat.

Transport the animal to a refrigerated holding facility as soon as possible. Many people choose to age their meat. Aging is the practice of holding carcasses or cuts under low controlled temperature and humidity for several days to enhance flavor, tenderize, and complete curing reactions. Meat that is to be ground, cured or made into sausage or bologna does not need to be aged, since further processing tenderizes the meat.

If you decide to use a meat processor, it is your responsibility to dress and remove the hide of the carcass before entering the processing or refrigerated areas of the licensed establishment.

Processors must follow specific regulations to ensure the safety of your meat.

Smoking adds flavor to large cuts of meat and keeps them tender.

It is important to use a meat thermometer to ensure the food has reached a safe internal temperature.

Smoking is used for fish, game meat and game birds. Each type of meat has its own method of smoking.

Use good quality, properly cleaned and cooled game and fish for canning. To ensure the safety of canned meats or fish, all jars must be processed in the pressure canner at the correct temperature and for a specified amount of time to kill all the bacteria. Large game animals are canned like beef and small game animals and birds like poultry.

Remember pressure and adequate time is necessary to produce a safe, canned meat product.

Drying, as for jerky, requires that the meat be heated to 160 degrees before the dehydrating process. Thus, the meat must be cooked by baking or simmering before being placed in the dehydrator.

For additional information on handling and processing fish and game meat contact your local extension office and ask for Proper Processing of Wild Game and Fish; Proper Field Dressing and Handling of Wild Game and Fish; and Field Dressing Deer; Pocket Guide.

Farm-City Feast Tradition Continues

MONTROSE (Susquehanna Co.) — Since its beginning in 1955, the Pennsylvania Farm-City program continues to celebrate the cooperation and partnership between farms and urban dwellers. This tradition is played out again this year in Susquehanna County as the 37th Annual Farm-City Feast at Mountain View High School, Saturday, Nov. 22, starting at 7:30 p.m.

The Farm-City Feast is planned and put together by a committee of volunteers who work in conjunction with Penn State Cooperative Extension of Susquehanna County. This year plans include a welcome by Ted Place, the master of ceremonies, followed by a roast beef dinner served by the Harford Willing Workers.

After dessert the program moves to the auditorium for the evening's entertainment, Farmer Joe Peck, who will have you "laughing until the cows come home." Peck is a dairy farmer and storyteller who enjoys rural life on his farm in Saratoga County, N.Y.

Peck has gathered some of his favorite columns written over the years in a book, "A Cow in the Pool & Udder Humorous Farm Stories."

Cost of this event is $8 which includes meal, entertainment, and door prizes. Tickets are available from committee members (call the extension office at (717) 278-1158 for names) or directly from the office at 31 Public Avenue, Montrose.

Wayne County Dairy 4-H'ers Win At State Show

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — Several Wayne County 4-H dairy members placed high in the "48th Annual Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show" in September at the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

Jonas (Cold Springs-Rileyville), won first place with a Milking Shorthorn fall or senior yearling heifer; Christopher Rowan (Cold Springs-Rileyville), placed first in best bred and owned Milking Shorthorn summer yearling heifer; and Destinee D. Winter Canning

Part 1 — Pressure Canning

Just because the growing season is over, it doesn't mean that you need to put the canner away. The more leisurely days of winter is a good time to try some new canning recipes and make some specialty items.

Many of these items are a convenience for meal preparation. This week we will look at some pressure canning ideas. The next article will share some boiling water bath ideas.

Canned boneless, skinless chicken can be the basis of many dishes. The soft meat breaks up easily to layer with refried beans, cheese, shredded lettuce, and salsa for a tasty taco. Top with sour cream if desired. Roll these same ingredients in a soft tortilla for a delicious fajita. In fact, the canned chicken is suitable for many Mexican dishes. Thicken the canned chicken and its broth with a little flour or cornstarch, add some minced dried onion, celery and/or parsley flakes, and a few cooked or canned peas for a hearty creamed dish to serve over waffles, toast, or pancakes. Adding dry milk powder to the broth will give the gravy a richer taste.

Because the meat has been cooked so long in the canning process, it is very soft. To use it in cold dishes such as chicken salad, chill the meat first before cutting it into cubes. If you want large cubes of meat in dishes such as chicken pot pie, add the chilled meat just before serving and only cook enough to heat through. Substitute canned chicken for tuna in a noodle casserole; top with buttered bread crumbs and slivered almonds; bake until golden brown and you have a dish suitable to serve company.

How to can chicken: Chicken can be canned with the bone in or boneless. It can be raw packed or hot packed. Hot packed chicken has a clearer broth because the liquid can be skimmed before packing it into jars. To hot pack boneless chicken, boil, steam, or bake the chicken until about 3/4 done. Remove skin and bones. Pack hot chicken into hot jars, leaving 1-inch headspace. If desired, add teaspoon salt to each pint, or 1 teaspoon salt to each quart, if desired. Ladle hot cooking liquid, water or chicken broth over chicken, leaving 1-inch headspace. Remove air bubbles. Adjust two-piece caps. Process pints 1 hour and 15 minutes, quarts 1 hour and 30 minutes at 11 pounds pressure in a dial gauge canner and 10 pounds pressure in a weighted gauge canner. Adjust times for higher altitudes.

Beef, pork, lamb, and venison can be canned and used in similar creative ways. Combining meat and vegetables with a starch product makes a hearty winter meal. Top a vegetable or beef stew with dumplings. If desired, thicken canned stew with a little cornstarch before adding the next toppings. Homemade biscuit dough can be placed on stew in a flat casserole or 9x13-inch baking dish and baked at 400F until golden brown. A pastry crust can be added for a traditional meat pie. Spice up the pastry with mixed minced herbs—parsley, basil, and thyme.

USDA does not recommend adding noodles, milk or thickening agents to home canned soups and stews. Avoid adding thickeners to dishes such as chicken a la king unless using a tested recipe for home canning because the starch may prevent adequate heat transfer inside the jar. If thickening is desired, add it to the product just before serving.

Ingredients in recipes such as bean soup, beef stew with vegetables, chicken a la king, and goulash are available year round. Carrots, celery, potatoes, onions are reasonably priced for winter canning. Hearty bean soup and split pea soup have cold weather appeal. See the Ball Blue Book for tested recipes.

Orange flavored glazed carrots might have special appeal to those on a low sodium diet. Heat 2 cups brown sugar, 2 cups water, and 1 cup orange juice in a saucepot stirring to dissolve sugar. Keep syrup hot while preparing 7 pounds carrots. Wash, peel, and cut carrots into 3-inch pieces. Thicker pieces will need to be cut in half-lengthwise. Pack carrots tightly into hot jars, leaving 1-inch headspace. Ladle hot syrup over carrots, leave 1-inch headspace. Remove air bubbles. Adjust two-piece caps. Process pints and quarts 30 minutes at 10 pounds pressure. Yields about 6 pints. Source: Ball Blue Book.

A Beautiful Gift for Someone You Love

"Being inducted into the VFW Hall of Fame was the greatest honor in my lifetime."

— Cristy Lane

POW's and MIA's... We Should Never Forget.

Amidst their hardships and tribulations, America's fighting men and women have always taken comfort in their favorite songs of faith. These songs have helped to keep strong their belief in their God, and their love for their country, which has asked of them great sacrifices for the sake of their fellow Americans. To serve these wonderful men and women Cristy Lane worked more than 120 shows in Vietnam during the Vietnam War. It was Cristy's way of keeping faith with the troops, at a time when many Americans were turning their backs on them. As long as she lives, she will never forget the faces of these young men and women. On August 27, 2003 the VFW formally inducted Cristy into the VFW Hall of Fame in San Antonio at their National Convention. And now Cristy Lane is proud to present a special CD of songs of faith to our Veterans of Foreign Wars, many of whom she met in the jungles of Southeast Asia.

These are the most requested songs of faith of all time, including Cristy's #1 country hit from 1980, the timeless classic, "One Day At A Time." These songs have been selected especially for you, America's veterans, who know so well the meaning of faith, and the value of a great song of faith.

God bless and take it one day at a time.

—Cristy

Horse And Buggy Mennonites Publish Cookbook To Profit Children With Special Needs

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

MIFFLINBURG (Union Co.)—Lancaster Farming has some very special readers in Union County who from time to time send in recipes.

How delightful to hear they have published a cookbook. Not only does it contain wonderful recipes, but also pages of information on helping people to understand and relate to children with special needs.

This unique concept was birthed by Lena Burkholder and her sister Marian Zimmerman.

Marian said, "My sister Lena and I often talked about making a cookbook with favorite recipes from our church group — horse and buggy Mennonites of Union County."

The sisters handed out recipe forms and were amazed by the tremendous response. While compiling the recipes, Marian and her husband Warren were told that their second son, Roy, was hearing impaired like his 5-year-old brother Nathaniel.

The sisters talked about the need to help the community understand the needs of the hearing impaired. As they discussed the concept, they recognized the necessity for the community to understand the needs of other special children in the area.

The result is a cookbook that includes pages dedicated to individual children, and explanations about their special needs.

Marian wrote about deafness and how to communicate with a person who has a hearing loss. Although her children use hearing aids, that doesn't mean they can hear normally.

"A deaf person often feels very alone in a group. It's hard to lip-read many different people at the same time," Marian said of the need for them to learn sign language.

Another Mom who has a son diagnosed with Fragile X Syndrome (FXS) wrote a page explaining the disorder and how it affects the child.

She writes, "If FXS only caused long faces and large ears, there would be little reason for concern, but mental impairment is common. Children are often slow in developing speech. When they do talk, their speech is often repetitive and difficult to understand. Behaviors include hyperactivity, a short attention span, and autistic-like conduct such as poor eye contact and hypersensitivity to the environment."

Another mother wrote about Maple Syrup Urine Disease (MSUD), explaining what her child is permitted to eat and what happens if she eats foods that

Distinctive Scones

PEACH-ALMOND SCONES

2 cups flour
¼ cup plus 1 tablespoon sugar, divided
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
5 tablespoons butter
½ cup sliced almonds, lightly toasted (divided)
2 tablespoons milk
1 egg
1 can (16-ounce) peaches, drained, and finely chopped
½ teaspoon almond extract
Preheat oven to 425 degrees.

Combine flour, ¼ cup sugar, baking powder, and salt in large bowl. Cut in butter with pastry blender until mixture forms coarse crumbs. Stir in ¼ cup almonds. Lightly beat milk and egg in small bowl. Reserve 2 tablespoons milk mixture; set aside. Stir in peaches and almond extract into milk mixture. Stir into flour mixture until soft dough forms.

Turn dough out onto well-floured surface; knead 10-12 times. Divide in half; shape each into a ball. Flatten each ball into a 6-inch circle. Cut each circle into 8 wedges. Place 1-inch apart on an ungreased cooking sheet. Brush wedges with reserved milk mixture. Sprinkle with remaining ¼ cup almonds and 1 tablespoon sugar. Bake 10-12 minutes or until golden brown. Remove from cookie sheet and cool 10 minutes. Makes 16 scones.

SPICED BUTTER

½ cup butter, softened
3 tablespoons brown sugar
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground allspice
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
In small bowl combine all ingredients. Beat until smooth. Serve with warm scones.

CHOCOLATE SCONES

½ cup heavy whipping cream
1 large egg, lightly beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups all-purpose flour
½ cup Dutch-processed unsweetened cocoa powder
¼ cup granulated white sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup cold unsalted butter, cut into small pieces

For tops of scones:

Mix together 1 large egg, lightly beaten with 1 tablespoon heavy cream

Preheat oven to 375 degrees and place rack in center of oven. Line a baking sheet with parchment paper.

In small bowl, whisk together the egg, whipping cream, and vanilla; set aside.

In large bowl, whisk together the flour, cocoa powder, sugar, baking powder, and salt. Using a pastry blender or two knives, cut the butter into the flour mixture until it resembles coarse crumbs. Add the cream mixture and stir just until the dough comes together.

Transfer the dough to a lightly floured surface and knead a few times. Shape the dough into a 7-inch circle. With a sharp knife, cut the dough into 8 triangles. Brush any excess flour from the bottom of the scones, and place them on the baking sheet. Brush the tops with a little of the beaten egg combined with the cream. Bake for 15 minutes or until they are firm around the edges but a bit soft in the center. Cool on a wire rack.

Variation: Add ¼ cup of semi-sweet or white chocolate chips to the basic scone recipe. Other suggestions: toasted and chopped nuts, orange zest, dried sour cherries or cranberries.

The cookbook published by Horse and Buggy Mennonites, "Recipes From the Heart of Union County," contains 553 recipes in 10 different categories. The cookbook also includes information about children diagnosed with special needs.

contain too much protein — which can raise levels and cause brain damage. Treatment must begin at birth to prevent mental retardation.

Another mother wrote about her two children who have Crigler-Najjar Syndrome (CNS), a rare metabolic disorder of the liver. These children must sleep beneath very bright blue lights every night without covers or nightgowns to keep bilirubin levels down. With the lights only 7-8-inches away from them, the lights get hot and flies are attracted to the blue light.

A Union County tutor compiled tips about working with children who have learning disabilities.

The cookbook also contains poems and Bible verses that mothers found helpful in reminding them that "God has a plan for each and every child and that God gave us the child for a reason. These children are precious and perfect in the Lord's sight," Marian wrote.

"Lena and I enjoyed working together on this book, and now we enjoy hearing about the joy others get from using this book," Marian said.

Marian and Warren with their children, Mary Lou, 9; Judith, 7; Nathaniel, 5; Karla, 4; Roy, 2; and Lynn, 3 months, live on a small farm and operate a diesel shop in Lewisburg.

Lena and her husband Warren and children Marcus, 10; Christopher, 7; and Jere, 5; live on a dairy farm in Mifflinburg.

The cookbooks are available for $9 at the following locations:

Allen and Mary Hoover's Bernina Store, Mifflinburg; Nora Martin's Quilt Shop, Millmont; Beaver Run Dry Goods, Mifflinburg; Verna's Fabrics, Mifflinburg; Flo-Ann Garment, Ephrata; and Elk Creek Dry Goods, Brush Valley.

The cookbooks can also be ordered by mail or by phone for an additional charge of $3 to cover postage and handling. Contact Lena at 1100 Beaver Run Rd., Mifflinburg, PA 17844, or call (570) 966-9549. Or readers can contact Marian at 360 Young Rd., Lewisburg, PA 17837, or call (570) 966-0224.

Consuming Thoughts

It is fun when grandchildren come to visit, or if you regularly lend a hand with their care, but as you know, the care and feeding of grandchildren is also a major responsibility. Many of the feeding practices you probably used with your own children are no longer advocated for today's infants and toddlers.

Let's take a look at FDA recommended food safety implications of feeding that special new person in your life.

Keep it Clean

- Always begin formula and food preparation by washing your hands.

- If making homemade baby food, use a brush to clean areas around the blender blades of food processor parts. Old food particles can harbor harmful bacteria that may contaminate other foods.

- Use detergent and hot water to wash and rinse all utensils (including can opener) that come in contact with baby's foods.

Handle Baby's Food Safely

- Harmful bacteria from a baby's mouth can be introduced into food or bottles where it can grow and multiply even after refrigeration and reheating. If the baby does not finish a bottle, do not put it back in the refrigerator for another time. Likewise, do not feed a baby from a jar of baby food and put it back in the refrigerator for another time. Saliva on the spoon contaminates the remaining food.

- If using commercial baby food check to see if the safety button on the lid is down. If the jar lid doesn't "pop" when opened, do not use. Discard jars with chipped glass or rusty lids.
- Follow the manufacturer's recommendations for preparing bottles before filling with formula or milk.

Store Food Safely

- Observe "use by" dates on formula cans.

- To freeze homemade baby food put the mixture in an ice cube tray. Cover with heavy-duty plastic wrap until the food is frozen. Pop food cubes into a freezer bag or airtight container and date it. Store up to three months. One cube equals one serving.

Keep Food

At Safe Temperatures

- Perishable items like milk, formula or food left out of the refrigerator or without a cold source for more than 2 hours should not be used.

- When traveling with a baby, transport bottles and food in an insulated cooler. Place the ice chest in the passenger compartment of the car; it's cooler than the trunk. Use frozen gel packs, or bags of ice to keep food or bottles cold on long outings. Do not keep bottles or food in the same bag with dirty diapers.

Avoid Serving Certain Foods

- Do not feed honey to children less than a year old. It can contain the botulinum organism that could cause illness or death.
- Raw or unpasteurized milk should not be served to infants and children.
- Heat processed meat and poultry (hot dogs, deli meats & cold cuts) to steaming. Occasionally these foods are contaminated with Listeria monocytogenes bacteria that can cause serious illness among those whose immune systems are vulnerable. High temperatures kill the bacteria.

After heating, the food can be refrigerated and served chilled at a later time. Remember, too, that these food safety guidelines also apply to day care or childcare establishments.

1/2 cup butter, melted
1 cup brown sugar
2 eggs
3 cups oatmeal
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt

Attach the following instructions: Combine noodle soup mix and six cups water in a large stockpot. Add 3 diced carrots, 2 chopped celery stalks, and one chopped onion. ANSWER — Jenna Burns, Telford, had requested a recipe for Poor Man's Fruit Cake. An answering recipe was printed in the Oct. 25th issue. Since then we have received numerous versions of the recipe. Fern Freeman, Ellitsburg, writes that butterless, eggless, and milkless Poor Man's Cake sometimes called War Cake became popular during World War I.

Poor Man's Cake

Mix together the following and boil 5 minutes after mixture begins to bubble:

2 cups brown sugar
2 cups hot water
2 teaspoons lard or vegetable shortening
1 package raisin
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves

After mixture is cooked and cooled, add 3 cups flour and 1 teaspoon baking soda dissolved in a little hot water. Bake in greased tube pan for about one hour at 350-375 degrees.

This makes a heavy, dark cake.

Here's an entirely different version from Mrs. Daniel Yoder, Lewistown, who writes that she found this recipe, but it doesn't include instructions for mixing.

Poor Man's Fruit Cake

2 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon cloves
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 1/2 cups mincemeat
2 eggs
1 can tomato soup
1 cup nuts
1 cup raisins
Combine ingredients and pour into tube pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 80 minutes.

ANSWER — Thanks to Fern Freeman, Ellitsburg, for sending this recipe for Norma Breininger, New Tripoli.

4-H Seeing Eye Puppy Project, A Success Story

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Ask people to name an animal that 4-H kids work with, and most would say cattle, pigs, horses or sheep. But in Pennsylvania, high on the list should be dogs — seeing eye dog puppies to be specific.

Although the Seeing Eye Puppy Project — a joint effort of The Seeing Eye Inc., of Morristown, N.J., and Penn State Cooperative Extension's 4-H Youth Development Program — started in 1942, it is not widely known. Despite this, the program plays an important role in many lives.

The Franklin County 4-H Seeing Eye Puppy Project was established in 1985. Since then, 4-Hers have raised approximately 310 puppies, 160 of which have gone on to become guide dogs. Both adults and youth participate in the puppy club. "It gives me experience in learning about animals, but most of all, it gives me a chance to give back to the community and help someone else out," says Sara Harbaugh, a 15-year-old puppy raiser from Orrstown.

The Seeing Eye breeds its own German shepherds, Labrador retrievers, golden retrievers and lab/golden crosses. The puppies then are placed into volunteer homes. The Seeing Eye pays all veterinary costs and provides a stipend to defray the cost of food.

Most volunteer puppy-raisers are children between the ages of 9 and 19 and adults, especially retired adults. A volunteer receives a puppy that's between seven and eight weeks old and raises it until it is between 14 and 18 months old.

During this period, the participant must offer the puppy a loving environment, and teach it to live happily with humans. "It's easy to love the puppies when they first come because they are cute, but it's important that they learn to be loved so they can bond with their future person," says Alex Nicastro, an 11-year-old puppy raiser from Greencastle.

The puppy also must be taught basic obedience commands and be exposed to the world in which it will eventually work. "We have to socialize, expose and love the puppies," says Donna Boyd, a 4-H volunteer currently raising her 18th puppy. "Guide dogs guide because they love their owner. This bond of love begins with the 4-H family."

All volunteers and their puppies must attend local puppy club meetings. These meetings teach volunteers how to provide discipline and encouragement for the puppies and allow the puppies a chance to socialize with other dogs. "Attending meetings is very important," says Boyd. "The meetings show the 4-Her how the Seeing Eye wants the dogs trained. This is also where the dogs experience a lot of their socialization with other dogs and people, so that they're not upset by situations and become aggressive."

Once the puppy is between 14 and 18 months old, it goes into training at the Seeing Eye for four months. This training includes mastering traffic situations to prepare the puppy for its work as a guide dog. Toward the end of the training period, the Seeing Eye sends letters to the volunteers inviting them to watch the dog and its instructor in action.

"Seeing your dog in training is unbelievable," Boyd says. "This unruly puppy has gone on to be a responsible animal — a person's life is depending on them. It's like watching a child graduate from college."

Julie St. Claire, a 12-year-old puppy raiser from Chambersburg, remembers watching her puppy in training. "It was sad and happy at the same time because I knew I was helping someone else," she says. After completing and successfully passing its training, the dog then is assigned a blind master and has an adjustment and training period of approximately one month.

There are currently 21 counties in Pennsylvania participating in the Seeing Eye Puppy Project, as well as counties in New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and New York. There are 16 to 18 puppies being raised in Franklin County.

Virginia Knoll has been raising puppies for more than 30 years and is now raising her 48th and 49th puppies. She started with the project as a teenager in New Jersey and has continued raising puppies with the Franklin County Puppy Club. "It's fun having puppies," she says. "It's a challenge raising a puppy and then having it go on to help a blind person, but it's a great feeling knowing you've helped someone."

While it is no easy task to provide a home for a puppy and then after a year return it to Seeing Eye, participants say the satisfaction of helping a blind person to move about with independence far outweighs any negatives. "It's very challenging, but extremely rewarding," Boyd says. "You raise your children to go into the world and work, and that's what these puppies do. It also helps that you can get another puppy right away."

Dear Twig: I saw a deer last winter and it was tan. I saw a deer last summer and it was reddish-brown. I saw a deer this morning, a beautiful fall morning, and it was gray. Do deer change color?

Oh good observations. Thank you for sharing them. Yes, indeed deer do change color — a change as you've seen that's tied to the seasons. In spring and summer the coats of both white-tailed and mule deer, the two deer species in North America are mostly reddish brown — a rich, lovely hue that very much resembles the cinnamon feathers of a wood thrush, the autumn fur of a red fox, the burnt-sienna tenders of a 76 Ford Pinto. (Deer throats, bellies and face parts are white.)

But deer like the leaves change color: in autumn the reddish brown hairs fall out (gradually, otherwise deer would look and shiver like so many giant Chihuahuas). Heavier gray or tan hairs replace them. The change provides a warmer coat and also better camouflage. In spring the color changes back, gray or tan out, reddish-brown in.

Gray deer mean that fall is here or they ran out of Gremlin Formula. (Ask your dad. Wait. Don't.)

New Children's Book 'Grasshopper Pie' For Kids And Parents

ST. GEORGE, Utah — Wind-River Publishing has announced publication of "Grasshopper Pie" by Rebecca and Angela Talley of Durango, Colo.

This picture book for children ages 4-6 tells the tale of two imaginative young children — Logan and Madolyn — who wish to cook for their Mother. Mom is happy to play along with them by suggesting imaginary dishes for them to cook, but she's also busy cleaning the house.

She isn't aware of the front door opening and closing as her kids prepare her favorite desert, Grasshopper Pie! Mom learns an important lesson about keeping an eye on her children when Logan and Madolyn bring her an all too real desert.

This book is fun to read and is enjoyed by adults and children alike. The real-life mother-daughter team of Rebecca and Angela Talley have brought to life this imaginative story, which Rebecca has been telling her own children for many years. Angela, a student of Durango High School, has always wanted to illustrate her mother's story and is delighted with the results.

Grasshopper Pie is available from JB Howick, WindRiver Publishing, Inc., P.O. Box 911540, St. George, UT 84791; voice (435) 634-8037; fax (435) 688-0138.

Smart Stuff with Twig Walkingstick

Dear Twig: A flock of geese just flew over my house. What kind were they?

Well, it's hard to say without having seen them or knowing where you live. But it's likely they were Canada geese, which are common and spreading in North America. Snow geese are another possibility. Other species, such as brant, Ross's and white-fronted geese, are less common but still possible, depending on where you live.

Canada geese are big (up to 45 inches with a five-foot wingspread), noisy (their nickname is 'honker') with brown and white bodies and black and white heads. Remember the movie 'Fly Away Home'? Those were Canada geese.

Snow geese are smaller, about 19 inches long. Their feathers, except for black wing tips, are white. (An exception are blue geese, which are blue morph snow geese.) And instead of honking they give a high pitched "bow-wow," perhaps not unlike your Aunt Klee's Shih Tzu.

Fall is here, and geese, ducks and more are migrating. Look up from time to time and you'll see them. Just make sure your mouth is closed.

Tight lipped,

Newcomer Heads Lancaster County Farm Women Society

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)
— Some things never change, they say, but from the perspective of Phyllis Newcomer, too many things are changing.

One of the most distressing changes is seeing dwindling membership in the Society of Farm Women, both county and statewide.

When Newcomer joined the society as a young farm wife in 1954, the organization had a waiting list of potential members. The individual societies that made up the state organization had to limit membership because they met in homes for monthly meetings.

Newcomer said about 40 women gathered in the living room of the home when she joined. The county had more than 1,000 members meeting throughout the county in 35 private homes.

The purpose of the society is to contribute the power and influence of farm women to increase the influence of the farm home. The society also contributes to the community involvement of farm women to develop leadership and to promote better living and working conditions in the farm homes of Pennsylvania. Members promote love for the farm and rural life.

When the society was founded in 1914, the majority of the population was connected with farm life. But times have changed. Membership has reflected the fact that less than two percent of the general population are involved in farming. Although the organization addresses common interests shared by mothers, wives, and grandmothers everywhere, times have changed.

More women work off the farm and do not have a flexible schedule for attending meetings. Mothers often serve as chauffeurs to their children's sports and community events. Women have more options and commitments for filling free time.

"It seems we can't attract younger women to join, and our

Phyllis Newcomer is Lancaster County Farm Women Society's newly installed president. She heads the county's 22 societies with 457 members.

Ida's Notebook

by
Ida Risser

The fields look so very bare now that the corn is harvested. Rye has been planted and disced into the ground. The silos are filled with corn, soybeans, and alfalfa. Now the heifers and cows will have plenty of feed this winter.

The ground is too wet but I've been digging my flower bulbs anyway as the frost has killed them. This fall I am leaving many in the ground as I have too many cannas, elephant ears, and gladiolas. I took most of the Peruvian and Aztec lilies out of the ground.

We have lots of quinces but as they were not sprayed they are difficult to pare and use. Although as the flavor is unusual, I peel some of them for eating on cereal. In October my saffron bulbs came up from the ground and gave beautiful blue blossoms with red centers. I dry the stamens and cook them with chicken.

Our grandchildren take part in many sports. The football, baseball, and soccer games are over for the season. But, now they play volleyball and take swimming lessons. These activities keep the parents very busy too as they drive them to their games. Recently we attended a football game played under the lights. Our grandson was in the game and we were prepared for very cold weather but we were pleasantly surprised that we were quite comfortable under a blanket.

Last week we attended a seminar on keeping your brain active. We were told to do jigsaw puzzles and crossword puzzles and read. Also, we were instructed to make notes to remind ourselves of appointments. We should get at least six and one-half hours sleep, take vitamins, and eat nuts. Peanuts, almonds, and walnuts were recommended. I suppose that people will choose which of these things they enjoy doing.

Pieces Of History Found In Antique Quilts

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU

Section Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)

— For attendees of the recent Quilt Show and Tell, "Building Memories Through The Years," it was evident that quilts mean much more than just a warm and cozy covering for a bed.

For the quilters, the pieces of dresses, aprons, or father's shirts that comprise the design make the quilts worth far more than simple monetary value.

Hosted by the Red Rose Quilters Guild of Lancaster County, the event drew more than 225 people to the gym at Calvary Church.

Visitors watched as exhibitors took turns telling the stories of their quilts. Susan Swan, for instance, described her "trip around the world" quilt, which was "made by my grandmother and her friends at quilting bees."

She said, "I have memories of being at the farm where the ladies would gather on the second floor — I remember hearing them laughing and talking" as they worked," she said.

Swan later found one of these quilts, torn and tattered, and decided to ask Nancy Jane Ryder, Leola, "to rescue" the quilt.

Ryder first snips the loose threads and tattered pieces of material, then appliques new, closely-matching pieces onto the top before quilting it. She is careful not to quilt the whole way through so the back of the piece looks the same.

The quilt rested on a bed in Swan's home until it returned for its second repair after her daughter's 125-pound Mastiff "nested" in it.

Ryder has replaced a total of 35 blocks. The quilt will someday be passed on to Swan's first granddaughter, who was born in May.

Katherine Huddle, Lititz, brought along her 2,500 patch quilt, which has been featured in quilting books and on a postcard album.

Made in 1915 by Katherine Hershey, her grandmother (who made a quilt for each of her five sons), the quilt features one large patch made up of 25 smaller squares. Since there are 100 of the bigger patches there is a total of 2,500 smaller patches. Each large patch is alike, however is placed in a strategic pattern so the quilt has a varied appearance. Even though it is valuable for its appearance, the quilt has also been utilitarian.

"Mother used it and I used it," said Huddle.

Brenda Brown, Manheim, displayed a quilt made by her great great grandmother. Pieced together with remnants of feed-sacks, dresses, aprons, towels into small squares of two triangles and tied with yarn, the quilt was rescued from her father who was going to use it in the garage.

"My mother was very frugal," observed Norma Pacl, Lititz. Besides making her children's clothing and her husband's shirts, Pacl's mother pieced together quilts, one of which Pacl displayed at the show. Her mother had put the top together in the late 1920s to early 1930s and then put it away without quilting it. Pacl, who can recognize pieces of dresses and patches from her mother's aprons, got it out five years ago and began finishing the quilt with her own hand stitching work. The double wedding ring pattern took three years.

Joan Sweigert, Ephrata, displayed several quilts at the event. Of special interest was the quilt that is made by her mother, Mabel Fake, from feed sacks, her skirts, and her children's clothing. "I remember my mother, during World War II, doing a lot of handiwork while my father (a medical doctor) was away," said Sweigert. "He was gone three years and she raised four girls."

Sweigert recalls her mother working underneath the chandelier of the family's dining room. Quilting "kept my grandmother busy," said Sweigert. "I used to think, 'what are you doing that for?' Now I'm hooked."

(Turn to Page B24)

Arlene Dougherty, Ephrata, made this cathedral window pattern in 1975 and pieced together curtains to match it. "Mom said she was quite sick of the pattern once everything was done," said her daughter, Mimi Geiss, Downingtown, at right.

Joan Sweigert, Ephrata, displayed several quilts at the event. Of special interest was the quilt that is made by her mother, Mabel Fake, from feed sacks, her skirts, and her children's clothing. "I remember my mother, during World War II, doing a lot of handiwork while my father (a medical doctor) was away," said Sweigert. "He was gone three years and she raised four girls."

Joseyane Carro, Lancaster, purchased this quilt at an auction. The piece "had been in a barn for decades and smelled bad and was filthy," she said. "The dry cleaners wouldn't take it." Carro washed the quilt in her own washing machine and plans to make pillows with the quilt, which she believes was made in the early 1920s. The quilt has a many-layered history. When one top would wear thin, it would be replaced with another, directly overtop of the first. "I think there are about seven layers," said Carro.

DETECTIVE

Anne Gilbert

What You Should Know
Before Buying Prints

Is that attractive bird or ship print as old as it looks?

These days when supposedly antique prints show up in shops and at auctions for top dollar, you'd best understand the descriptive terms that describe them, and if they are indeed as old as represented.

For a beginner, print collecting can be a risky business. Rule number one is that when an a specific artist and his works become popular, faking is a foregone conclusion. Even artist Albert Durer had problems with the faking and copying of his prints back in 1512. Copies of his works had become so widespread that the Nuremberg town council wrote a decree making this a crime. Woodblocks and copperplates made reprints easy even in those days.

Back in the 1970s, the growth of the limited editions market created hundreds of Salvador Dali and Pablo Picasso "unlimited editions." Many with faked signatures. They still make the rounds in shops and small auctions as genuine.

Since they were first printed,
Audobon birds, sporting prints, and Currier and Ives subjects have been the most reprinted.

When Audobon prints come to auction, prices can vary depending on condition, who the printer was and its rarity. Birds and bo-tanicals can still be discovered, but unfortunately they have often been trimmed to fit a picture frame. They aren't the bargain they seem.

Bird and botanicals usually had their beginnings as part of a book (folio). Like many book illustrations they have been removed from the books and sold separately over the years. While just about everybody has heard of Audubon, less familiar artists such as John Gould, Francois Levaillant, and Edward Lear can still be found at estate and garage sales.

Like Audubon, these artists produced important bird paintings that later became engravings, published in folios in the 19th century.

The first hand-colored, copper engraved bird paintings appeared in books about 1730. By 1830 hand-colored lithographs were made.

Chromolithographs, were printed in color after 1850. Almost all bird prints were made in Germany, France or England. A few were made in Italy, Holland and Scandinavia.

CLUES: When an auction catalog describes an early print as "trimmed" and "laid down" it means it isn't the original size and possibly the folio page number has been cut off.

"Laid down" means the print has been glued to a backing, as was common in the early 20th century. Both methods lower values. A "restrrike" is a later printing using the original plate.

That is the case with many audubons. If not so labeled it is all but impossible to tell. Since the prints are very expensive, the problem surfaces later on when you want to sell them.

Authentic prints should have been made in the artists' lifetime.

For instance, only a Rembrandt print made in his lifetime can be considered authentic; not those made in the 18th century by an etcher named Basan.

A "facsimile" is a photochemical reproduction of a print.

Examining it with a strong magnifying glass should show the pattern of tell-tale small dots.

A "reproductive print" is an original print that is a copy of a painting or drawing.

You're on your own when an auction description says "not examined out of frame."

The watermakers, platemarks or collector's mark would authenticate or disqualify a print.

Many late impressions of Old Master prints may have been touched up with India ink or watercolors to simulate the burr or rich inking of early impressions.

Think twice before buying a print with "foxing" (brown spotting) or tears. Restoration is costly and must be done by an expert.

A "clean deck" design that resists cut material build-up, innovative Intra-Drive™ gearboxes engineered and built by Woods, and the fastest blade speeds of any mower in its class. The 3180 Batwing® cuts through brush, up to three inches in diameter. A blade overlap of over six inches, and you have a mower that delivers a quality cut, without streaking. From its heavy-gauge deckplate to its heavy-duty drivelines, we build the 3180 to last. What's more, they come complete with a 36-month gearbox warranty.

NEW DIRECTION EQUIPMENT CO.

Time Is Money - Get More of Both!

Calculate how many loads of feed you mix per day. Multiply that by the minutes it takes for each batch of feed. That is how many hours of tractor, mixing and labor you are spending on feeding your cattle per day. Consider this: An NDE mixer can mix a batch of feed 10-15 minutes faster than other mixers. Calculate your feeding time again using the reduced time of the NDE Mixer. What are you going to do with the time and money you save?

Portable Tractor Saw

Cut cordwood, pulpwood, firewood, ties or any other type of wood... anywhere. Hook it up to your 3 point hitch, attach the PTO and move the Woodsman Saw to any location. As soon as you place a log on the sturdy 40" table, you'll get the feel of balanced-torque action. A light hand pressure moves the log into the blade, release the pressure and the spring loaded table rocks back on dual roller bearings, ready for the next cut. Built on a rugged steel frame, the Model 250 is engineered for years of heavy duty use.

Suzuki quadrunner ATVs may be used by those aged 16 and older. Suzuki highly recommends that all ATV riders take a training course. We'll even pay for it. For safety and training course information, see your dealer or call the SVIA at 1-800-852-5344. ATVs can be hazardous to operate. For your safety, always wear a helmet, eye protection, and protective clothing. Always avoid paved surfaces. Never ride on public roads. Never carry passengers or engage in stunt riding. Riding and alcohol or other drugs do not mix. Avoid excessive speeds. Be extra careful on difficult terrain. Along with concerned motorists everywhere, Suzuki urges you to "TREAD LIGHTLY" on public and private land. Preserve your future riding opportunities by showing respect for the environment, local laws and the rights of others when you ride.

Take Command of Your Land With Dependable Krause Disc Harrows

Krause is the undisputed leader in building conservation tillage systems designed to help you achieve your agronomic goals.

Crop Residue Management

Krause discs size residue and incorporate it into the soil, improving Soil Tilth, reducing erosion and improving moisture infiltration.

Soil Tilth

Krause discs penetrate hard or crusted ground, thoroughly mix soil and residue and therefore greatly reduce the ability of soil to crust or compact.

Seed Bed Conditioning

Krause discs level seedbeds in all types of soil field conditions, resulting in more uniform germination and increased yield potential.

Krause Disc Harrows Are Available From 12' to 34'

Krause 7300 and 7400 Rockflex Discs Ready for your toughest Fall tillage tasks

The Krause 7300 Conservation Disc is designed for high-speed finishing and lighter primary tillage.

The Krause 7400 Cutting Disc tackles tough primary tillage or seed bed conditioning with equal perfection.

A Case-IH Rotary Axial-Flow Combine has only ONE moving part in its entire threshing/separating process... a single large-diameter rotor. Open up the side shield on any other rotary combine and compare it to the drive mechanism, and you will see that the Case-IH rotary combine has fewer moving parts, which means fewer problems and easier adjustments. Plus all Hooper combines are backed by our experienced combine service technicians.

Fall is the best time of the year to break up the hardpan!

"This planter has helped me become more efficient and productive."

INCREASED PRODUCTIVITY

"I used to have a CIH 950 6 row planter, and going to the 12 row I've noticed a big difference - it's mind-boggling. This past wet spring I knew I made the right decision because I was able to plant 400 acres of corn in one week. I'm by myself doing the work and I can plant 16 acres per hour. This planter has helped me become more efficient and productive."

SEEDING ACCURACY

"I was amazed - it will take corn right out of the bin and plant at 98% accuracy going 6 MPH. The vacuum holds the seed against the plate and the seed only has to travel a matter of inches from the plate down the tube and into the ground."

NARROW TRANSPORT - ONLY 12' 6"

"The pivot transport was a big plus. I have a lot of narrow roads and it's so much easier transporting. The narrow transport is controlled from inside the cab, and within 2 minutes I'm ready to go."

DEALER SUPPORT

"I've been to different classes and schools with some of the mechanics and they really know their stuff. The parts and service men are always trying to make it easier for you. When you buy from Hoober, you're not just buying a piece of equipment - you're buying the Hoober family of employees."

TK crawlers work where conventional tractors can't

A TK crawler turns tighter than conventional tractors, too That's a big advantage in cramped quarters or when making head land turns
For extended road
transportation, TK tracks can be fitted easily with clip-on steel pads or "street plates"

ATVs can be hazardous to operate. For your safety always wear a helmet, eye protection, and protective clothing. Never ride on paved surfaces or public roads. Never carry passengers, never engage in stunt driving, riding and alcohol/drugs don't mix and could cause injury or even death. Avoid excessive speeds and be particularly careful on difficult terrain. The Arctic Cat ATV may not be ridden by anyone under 18 years of age. Arctic Cat recommends that all riders take a training course, and that they read and understand their owner's manual before operation. For safety or training information, see your dealer or call the ATV Safety Institute at 1-800-887-2887. Along with concerned conservationists everywhere, Arctic Cat urges you to "Tread Lightly" on public and private land. Kegel's Produce's Myers Appointed To Board

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Kenny Myers, vice president of Lancaster-based wholesaler Kegel's Produce, has been appointed to the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's new Agriculture Education Advisory Board.

Agriculture Secretary Dennis C Wolff asked Myers to serve on the advisory board. Members provide input relative to the department's goal of educating the public about agriculture's importance and urging young people to consider careers in the industry.

"I have been very impressed with your interest and participation in issues affecting agricultural education," Wolff said in a recent letter to Myers. "Your experience and knowledge of the industry, and the value you place on students and adults getting an education in agriculture are of great value to this Department and the goals of the Administration."

Myers, whose term runs through Aug. 1, 2007, started with Kegel's Produce at a young age and has been with the company full-time since 1989. He is the third generation of his family to work for Kegel's Produce, having worked with his grandmother and parents in the business.

Kinze Introduces New Integral Planter Model

WILLIAMSBURG, Iowa — Integral row crop planters designed with spring-loaded contact drive systems and self-contained seed rate transmission have recently been introduced by Kinze Manufacturing, Inc.

The Kinze 3110 Three Point Mounted Planter — available in rigid sizes from 4 Row N (30 inches) to 8 Row W (36 inches to 40 inches) — features bolt-on, height-adjustable wheel modules with spring-loaded contact drive wheels.

The wheel modules, with 7.60-inch-by-15-inch 8-ply tires, allow toolbar height to be set for flatland or varying-height beds. The contact drive wheel system eliminates ground drive chains and helps reduce residue, rock, and mud buildup problems for more consistency even in rugged field conditions.

Additional row unit attachments include no-till coulters, residue wheels, disc furrowers, bed levelers, dual row unit gauge wheels, and granular chemical attachments with a variety of chemical banding choices. Tough, durable powder-coat paint adds years to the planter's quality construction.

NxLevel Training For Entrepreneurial Farmers Started In Maryland

COLUMBIA, Md. — "Tilling the Soil of Opportunity..." A NxLevel™ Training in Business Planning for Entrepreneurial Farmers, has been launched to teach small to mid-scale farmers and agricultural professionals needed business skills.

Weekly classes will begin Wednesday, Nov. 12 and run through Wednesday, Feb. 4, 2004. All classes will be conducted at the Carroll Community College, Westminster, Maryland.

"We recognize the great need to make this kind of business training available to the future stakeholders of Maryland agriculture," said class co-coordinator Dr. Dale Johnson, farm business management specialist, Maryland Cooperative Extension.

NxLevel™ Training will be administered through the Carroll Community College, Westminster, with support from the Howard County Economic Development Authority, the Maryland Cooperative Extension, and MidAtlantic Farm Credit. The NxLevel™ program which was developed by the University of Colorado at Denver and the University of Nebraska and has been offered nationwide.

The course is taught in 10, three-hour sessions, helping farmers scrutinize mission and goals, marketing strategies and financial statements, and other critical components of a comprehensive business plan. Class instructors Ginger Myers, Howard County Economic Development Authority and Dr. Johnson are partnering with farm support organizations, agribusiness, and farmer mentors to deliver the new training opportunity through the Carroll Community College.

INTRODUCING NEW GLEANER R SERIES COMBINES WITH THE NEW COMFORTECH II CAB

You Experience A LEADER

It should come as no surprise that GLEANER R SERIES combines are the easiest in the industry to operate. GLEANER's new COMFORTECH II cab has a lot of new features for safety and comfort.

The minute you sit down in the new air-ride seat, you notice how important frequently used controls are located on the armrest console of the new hydraulic handle. Both are mounted to the seat so they float with you over field contours. Gone are the days of trying to "hunch in" on a control switch while bouncing over end-row turns or ruts in the field.

Everlast II is better:

- it is galvanized heavier, like old times
- it is heat formed, less paint cracks
- is cut while hot, prevents early edge rust
- won't scratch as easy, paint is harder
- won't bend or buckle as easily, stronger design
- laps are tighter, and virtually invisible
- nails & screws seal better, ribs fit tighter to head
- zinc phosphate, not chromate under paint
- still priced about the same or less
- picked up or deliver from Lebanon plant

Everlast II is excellent for houses and barns.

Standing seam is ideal for houses

Everlast

You Must Hear what Brad says:

"I couldn't be more pleased with my riding arena!"

Brad Turley with Simba his horse at Farm - Killingworth, CT

"I knew what I wanted and I found it! After extensive research I knew I needed a fabric structure from We Cover. The facts that made my decision were:

"The Engineering - when I saw their heavy built trusses and engineered drawings, I knew their building would hold up to the Atlantic Coastal winds and snow

"The Lighting - I can ride my horse in the natural light with no shadows to spook my horse.

"The Design - The Building has straight side walls giving me plenty of clearance for riding. The fabric is in 12' panels and each panel is tightened by a ratchet system. Add to this the convenient overhang and a sensible ventilation system. These excellent features combined with the many options of this building package make it a real winner!

"My local building engineer is so impressed, he says he will never again recommend a traditional building for an indoor riding arena. "I recommend you call We Cover today!"

The strength, integrity, and appearance of a solid building along with the lighting and construction advantages of a fabric structure.

Everlast laps better.

Everlast II metal roofing and siding overlaps are stronger, tighter, and virtually invisible. Lap edges are less subject to deforming bends during erection. Driving rain is less likely to penetrate at the laps.

BEEF TIPS

Commercial cattlemen benefit greatly from crossbreeding of two or more breeds. By crossbreeding, hybrid vigor (or heterosis) is produced, providing better performance than the average of the two parent breeds. Maximum heterosis results when the cow and bull are of entirely different breeds. Crossbreeding can also be used to combine the strengths of two different breeds.

- Dakota alfalfas are dormancy rated at "2" and proven to excel in winter hardiness and production
- Trask Seed is American grown and priced to reflect no corporate monopolies!

PA farmers have great hay crops with South Dakota alfalfa seed. Painterland Farms, Westfield, PA, John Painter said "The Trask's seed grew extremely well. We recommend it to anyone. It is real leafy and yielded as well as any of the high priced name brand seeds. It cost 40% as much. We planted 294 acres. We intend to plant more this spring. It was exceptionally winter hardy and resisted frost damage. We are very pleased."

E Stoltzfus from Lancaster County has planted a more expensive name brand seed next to Trask Seed and sees no difference.

Join the numerous farmers in the PA/NY area harvesting superb alfalfa from South Dakota seed

How to start a Rally in your barn.

New RALLY™ Dairy Feed is a breakthrough technology that promotes maximum utilization of carbohydrates and increases energy. In pre-fresh cows, RALLY Dairy Feed decreased NEFA (nonesterified fatty acids) level. That indicates a better energy balance, and less use of body fat reserves at a critical time. More importantly, RALLY Dairy Feed increased dry matter intake by 3.2 lbs./cow/day in early lactation. RALLY Dairy Feed promotes maximum utilization of carbohydrates and increases energy. On average, cows will produce 3 to 4 lbs. more milk per day. Rally your cows, and you win. Stop in for more information.
